DAMP DAYS.

The Rising River and Falling Rain at This Point.

Nineteen Feet of Water in the Mississippi Here and the Stream Swelling at the Rate of Six Inches an Hour.

The heavy rain storm that began about 9 o'clock this morning was a blessing in one respect at least, for it swept a great deal of mud and ice from the streets and left comparatively clean crossings for pedestrians where before were perfect streams of slush. The hard down-pour did not last beyond a few minutes. It was followed by a monotinous drizzle, that continued through the day, and made all out-of-doors seem murky and miserable. To rivermen, who do not want rain in the present condition of the streams, the dampness and its attendant high temperature had a meaning that was not exactly welcome. The reports from the upper country that came in towards noon restored confidence to steamboaters who now generally agree that nothing is to be feared until spring.

THE RIVER.

At 10 o'clock this morning there were 19 4-10 feet of water in the river at this point and the stream was still rising at the rate of about six inches an hour. The rise in the past twelve hours has been eight feet. The rapid increase in the volume of water did not set in until 11 or 12 o'clock last night, previous to which time from the breaking of the St. Charles gorge early in the morning the steamer had been coming up slowly at the rate of about an inch an hour. The nine or ten feet added to the river since yesterday morning has wrought a great change in the appearance of the levee. The water is not very far from the car tracks. The skid and freight piles came up close to the pavement and wharf-boats have tightened their lines in a sometimes vain effort to keep the bank end of their gangways out of the water. There are not many boats in port and no scenes of activity along the shore, about the only labor employed being that required to keep lumber and other material from floating away. The rain that came down pretty freely during the day kept people who had no business there away from the river front, and those who were compelled to face the weather at this exposed point had little to see, except the comparatively small quantity of ice that floated in the middle of the stream. The quantity and condition of the ice indicated that the supply up above must have been almost run out.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter made a trip along the Levee,

VISITING THE WHARFBOATS

and offices in quest of news. At the Harbor Office the deputy in charge expressed his opinion that while nothing definite could be said regarding the present rise or its prospects, he was inclined to believe this a mere spurt that followed the general break up in the higher rivers, and if the weather turned cold, it would pass over without any serious results as far as the St. Louis harbor was concerned. It all depends on the weather, however. He thought the Alton gorge would give way to-day or to-morrow, and that would add five or six more feet to the present stage of the water, and that would be about all. The big rise that created such a flurry here last year did not start in until about the 1st of April and it kept on getting higher and higher until June 6, when the gauge showed a depth in the stream of 32 7-10 feet, which was the highest water of the last rise. Rivermen generally expressed no apprehension regarding the present swell.

Capt. Geo. W. Ford, of the Harbor-boat, said he had heard nothing new and had no reason to change the views he expressed yesterday to the effect that the rise would not amount to much locally.

At Jenkins & Sass' office information was obtained concerning the Alton gorge, which was still firm at 6 o'clock this morning but rotting fast. People had quit crossing on the ice, and there were fears that it would cut loose at any time. The Missouri River is now open to Kansas City, with seven feet of water.

At Capt. Davidson's office there was no news, and along the wharves no information could be gleaned that put any other phase upon the situation at this point than that given in the preceding writing.

THE WEATHER UP NORTH.

At the United States Signal Service office it was learned that the thermometer had fallen from 64° to 55° between 6 and 10 a. m. to-day, and that the weather was rapidly growing colder here, while the same temperature existed in the North and West. At Bismarck the mercury was 10° below zero this morning, with a brisk northwest wind; At Fort Buford it was 21° below and at Omaha it was 9° above, with a northwest wind blowing at a lively rate. At Leavenworth the mercury tumbled 40° in twenty-four hours, standing at 10 a. m. to-day 24°. At St. Paul the thermometer registers 38°, at La Crosse 35°, and at Chicago 40°, with light rains. The cold streak is coming in this direction as fast as it can travel, and to-morrow morning there may be ice to replace the mud and sleet of to-day. The low temperature will hold the northern snows and diminish the chances of an unusual overflow before spring.

THE IRON HORSE.

A. A. Talmage returned from St. Joe this morning.

All the L. & N. trains have been abandoned until further notice because of the high waters.

H. S. DePew, general freight and passenger agent of the Cairo Short Line, returned from a week's trip to New Orleans to-day.

The Keokuk and St. Louis have given notice to shippers that no freight will be received for any points on the line, for the time being.

The little stern-wheel steamer Alberta, Albert B. Smith, captain, plying on the upper White River, reports this morning from Newport, Ark., that she has just landed at that point 750 bales of cotton, destined for St. Louis. The cotton was collected along the river up in the Ozark Mountains, and this trip is considered the champion of the season.

Superintendent Carrigan, of the Iron Mountain, has gone to Belmont to view the rising waters that are so rapidly encroaching on the railroad track at that point. Last spring's experience has proved that it is a bad policy to move trains over partly submerged tracks, and if the water rises much higher it is Mr. Carrigan's intention to discontinue traffic over that portion of the line entirely, stake the track and wait for the water to recede.

The Vandalia train No. 9 was last night and this morning abandoned, because of water over the track at Shoal Creek, about forty miles out of the city. The through trains are run over the O. & M. track to Odin, thence to the Vandalia track at Effingham over the Illinois Central. The Cincinnati train is again running in that city, the culvert which was washed out a few days ago having been replaced. C. B. & Q. train No. 4, due here last night, was twelve hours late because of a washout near Monmouth, and did not get in until five o'clock this morning.

SPORTING SUNDRIES.

Relative Merits of Slade and Sullivan—Base Ball and Billiards.

Since the recent sparring exhibition at Madison Square Garden, in which Jem Mace and his Maori pupil, Slade, were the principal features, a number of prominent fighters and scientific men have been interviewed in regard to the Maori's ability to face Sullivan. Mike Donovan, the well-known pugilist, says: "Slade is a very active fellow, but I do not believe that anybody can whip Sullivan. If anybody has a chance to do so it is Mace. At all events, his chance is better than Slade's. Slade would make a better fight than Ryan did, for he shapes better, a good deal better, and his sparring last night was first-rate. He has got good action, and is a very quick man on his feet, and showed to good advantage last night, but it is this way: Sullivan has more experience than Slade at present. And I think he will be a bigger man than Slade when both are in condition. He will then fight at 185 pounds, in the finest condition, and Slade at 175 or 180 pounds. Slade, you must understand, is sparring with a man that he knows when Mace is in front of him, and he knows he is not going to get slugged or thumped very hard. But I think he will not make as good a showing in front of Sullivan. For one thing, I don't think Slade has animal enough in him to fight Sullivan. He is not vicious enough. Mace in his day, and O'Baldwin in his, are the only men who might have whipped Sullivan if he had been about then."

Joe Coburn said: "I think Slade is a big, lively young fellow, and showed off very well there with Mace, but in regard to having any chance with Sullivan, I will back my own opinion—or, at least, if it is lawful to bet on a fight, I would bet—to the extent of $5,000, that Sullivan would whip him. Yes, he is a fine-built man, and a lively fellow, and he suits me just well enough as a sparrer that I would like to back Sullivan against him."

Prof. James O'Neill said: "I think this Slade is a very clever man, a hard hitter, and of the two—he and Sullivan—I think he is the better man. Of course I cannot say anything of his endurance and pluck, but as a scientific man he is far ahead of Sullivan. Yes, Slade is far the best boxer; in fact, there is no comparison between him and Sullivan in the matter of science."

The general opinion of the sporting men and authorities on boxing who witnessed the exhibition was that, though the Maori seemed to be the most scientific boxer and to all appearances a better man than Sullivan, he would not stand much of a show with him in the ring.

BILLIARDS.

The ninth game in the first-class tournament at Mussey's was played last evening between Billy Catton and Ed. Nelson, the former playing the full 500 points while the latter received odds of 325 points. Catton won the game. His best runs were 238 and 102, the former being the largest run made during the tournament. The betting, after the run of 238, was twenty to one on Catton.

Eugene Carter, the Chicago billiard expert, is at present in New Orleans, endeavoring to arrange a match with Frank Maggiola, of that city. On Tuesday evening he played a match at three-cushion carom with Louis Abrams, of New Orleans, for $50 a side. Carter conceding his opponent ten points in fifty. Carter won the game in ninety-five innings, leaving Abrams at forty-four. Carter's best run was five and Arams' three.

The game at Mussey's this evening will be between Wm. Emery, who receives odds of 325, and Tom Sawyer, who receives odds of 250 in 650 points. The game begins at 8 o'clock sharp.

NOTES.

The race meeting at Augusta closes to-day. The day will be devoted to trotting contests.

Last evening a meeting of the second nine of the Sportsmen's Park Association was held at the base ball headquarters, corner Sixth and Pine streets. The team as thus far organized is as follows: Dick Lancaster, Sullivan of last year's Browns, Houtz, Joe Blong, Kremeyer, Cunningham, Hogan, Decker, East, Davis and McCaffrey. Lancaster will pitch for and captain the nine.

Joe Coburn, the ex-champion, called on Richard K. Fox yesterday and offered to pay a forfeit of $1,000 for a fight with Sullivan, for $5,000 a side. Fox declined to receive the forfeit on account of his recent difficulty in regard to the Slade-Sullivan affair, and Coburn left, saying he would deposit his money with the New York Illustrated Times. The proposed challenge is the result of a quarrel between Sullivan and Coburn.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Col. Pearson, from the city, will drill the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, to-night at Turner Hall.

Dictator Pike, of Jupiter Lodge, Knights of Honor, will deliver an address at its meeting to-night.

As recently stated, the Odd Fellows' Hall to be built on Fourth street is in a fair way to be built, as an assessment upon each stockholder has been ordered.

The Fifth Street Social Circle is a decided success, the meetings being first-class for social enjoyment. A very pleasant union of this character occred last evening at the residence of Mr. Jefferson.

Not a Shooting Scrape.

There was a rumor on the streets about noon to-day that there had been a shooting scrape in the Republican office. A large crowd had collected in the neighborhood of Third and Chestnut streets, attracted by loud reports similar to pistol shots, which occurred every few minutes. It was discovered that the reports were made by vehicles running over a railway torpedo which some mischievous person had placed in the street and thus a big sensation was spoiled.

RAVAGED BY RIVERS.

The Extent of Damage by the Floods Enormous.

Situation To-Day at Cincinnati and Other Inundated Cities--The Relief Work--The Ohio Falling.

CINCINNATI, February 16.—The water continues to recede about an inch and a-half an hour. At 9:30 there was sixty-four feet four inches. This is still an inch above the highest previous flood, that of 1832. A brisk wind rising this morning gives serious cause for alarm to the owners of barges of all descriptions. From the first they have said a heavy wind would wreck and sink every barge in the river, owing to the extensive height and width of the river, for the waves are much greater while the facilities for securing fleets by cables are greatly reduced. The sky was clear and bright early in the morning, but clouds covered the sky soon after ten, with the wind from the southwest. Indications are favorable for rain, which is

BREADED NOW AS A PESTILENCE.

A repetition of the last two rains would bring despair.

Young Otten was shot by the militiamen last night. All the accounts agree that the soldiers were justifiable. The police and soldiers were attacked by a well known gang of roughs. One of the soldiers had been knocked down. The roughs outnumbered the police and soldiers, and firing the gun was the last resort. It effectually dispersed the crowd. One of the roughs has been arrested.

LAWRENCEBURG.

CINCINNATI, February 16.—No where does the falling water give greater joy than at Lawrenceburg, Ind. It is estimated that 200 houses were overturned or washed away, and 3,000 people driven from home with nothing but the clothes they wear. The loss will reach half a million. The generous relief sent them from Indianapolis, Shelbyville, Cincinnati and other places, was received with unbounded gratitude. No loss of life yet reported, but many narrow escapes. A large furniture warehouse fell in. Thirty or forty people in the upper stories escaped safely. There are fears that the Court-house foundations may crumble. Four hundred people are sheltered there.

12 NOON.

No rain and the prospect less threatening. The river stood 64 4-12 feet from 10 o'clock to 11, but at 11:30 o'clock it had gone down to 64 2-12 feet. The life-saving boat and crew of eight from Cleveland, under command of Godwood, arrived to-day and set to work distributing relief.

NEWPORT.

The Odd Fellows organized to-day with a view of paying special attention to the wants of members of the order not only now but until the course of business is restablished. The river is rising an inch and a half an hour at Wheeling and three inches at Marietta.

AT 1:30 P. M.

The Health Department is furnishing vegetables to the different supply depots, from the Market-house on Sixth street. At 1:30 o'clock the stage was sixty-four feet two inches. Drexel, Morgan & Co., New York, telegraphed a contribution of $5,000 this afternoon.

AN APPEAL.

CHICAGO, February 16.—Mayor Harrison having received appeals from New Albany, Jeffersonville and other cities on the Ohio River, issues an address inviting the churches, business men and others to subscribe liberally to meet the exigencies of the occasion.

WABASH.

CHICAGO, ILL., February 16.—A Wabash, Ind., special says, much live stock and growing wheat were destroyed by the floods in this section. The total damage the past ten days is $100,000.

SOCIETIES OF THE RED CROSS.

WASHINGTON, February 16.—All Associated Societies of the Red Cross in the United States have been officially notified by the National Association at Washington of the disasters on the rivers and have been requested to prepare for and take charge of such contributions for the relief of the inhabitants as may be found to them for distribution by their agents. Subscriptions may be sent to James E. Beasley, secretary of the Society of the Red Cross at Memphis; George W. Palton, president of the society at Vicksburg, and J. M. Southwaid, secretary of the Red Cross Association of New Orleans. Mr. M. E. Ingalls, of the Citizens' Relief Committee of Cincinnati, will receive subscriptions for the Red Cross Society until the regularly appointed agent of the association reaches that city. The above notification is signed by Clara Barton, president. The Board of Trustees, consisting of Secretaries Folger and Lincoln and Hon. G. B. Loring, are in active sympathy with this movement.

PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, February 16.—The high water is again subsiding here, but it is still rising slowly at the headwaters. The weather is clear and pleasant. No more danger is apprehended. The damage from the flood was very slight.

LOUISVILLE.

LOUISVILLE, February 16.—The river at 1 p. m. reached the highest point—forty-four feet five inches, or thirty-three inches higher than the flood of 1832. It is expected to continue rising till nightfall, when it is hoped the receding will begin. No casualties are reported for the day. Additional damage to property is not reported. Heavy contributions by citizens continue to pour in at the depots of supply. There is no danger of any one suffering for food or clothing. Louisville is determined nothing shall be left undone in aid of her distressed citizens.

A special to the Courier-Journal from Frankfort says the Kentucky River at 1:20 p. m. was still falling. The weather here is very warm with high shifting winds that will cause damage in the flooded district where the tenure of many houses on their foundations is very slight.

CAIRO.

CAIRO, ILL., February 16.—The river at this point measures forty-five feet six inches and still rising rapidly. It now lacks six feet six inches of being as high as last year, and no serious danger is apprehended from overflow unless a heavy rise comes from the Mississippi. Weather fair and warm. The Wabash and St. Louis Narrow-gauge Railroads have suspended business on account of the tracks being overflowed.

New Albany.

INDIANAPOLIS, February 16.—A special to the Daily News, from New Albany, says: The river is rising half an inch an hour. It rose five and a half inches last night. More water is coming. Five thousand people are homeless. The loss is over $1,000,000. If the threatened wind and rain comes the damage will be greater. Congress, the Legislature and the people are appealed to for aid. The distress is very great and can not be over-estimated, except that there has been no loss of life. The water is now nearly three feet above te famous high water line of 1832. Reports from Hardentown say the river fell fifteen inches last night and is still falling slowly. It is very warm. The mercury is 60, with indications of rain.

Ordered to Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON, February 16.—Keeper Marble, head of the Life Saving Station, near Sandusky, Ohio, has been ordered to proceed with a crew and surfboats to Cincinnati to to aid in saving life and property.

The Alton Gorge Moving.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, ILL., February 16.—The ice gorge in the river here moved at 3 o'clock. It is going in a body. The river is rising fast.

The Missouri.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, February 16.—The Missouri is bank full and running rapidly. A steady rain has been falling all night. The Gasconade and Osage are out of their banks. A heavy landslide at Bonnett's Mill, fifteen miles east of here has interrupted traffic on the Missouri Pacific and passengers must be transferred.

Demoralization of the Wires.

CHICAGO, February 16.—The Western Union officers here say the demoralization of the wires is now complete, and extends from Buffalo to Omaha and from St. Paul to Cairo. The poles are washed away in some localities, and the prevalence of fogs causes such a rapid escape of the electric fluid and such induction, that where the wires are intact business can with difficulty be done. Speedy relief is expected, however. The atmospheric conditions are improving in the West. The temperature is lowering below zero at Cheyenne, and only nine above at Omaha. There has seldom been so long and continous a prostrtion of the wires as during the past two or three week.

Aid for the Cincinnati Sufferers.

Yesterday evening a number of commercial travelers were engaged with Mr. Gerardi, in the rotunda of the Planters' House, discussing the hardships caused by the Cincinnati flood, when the idea was dropped that the commercial travelers start a subscription in behalf of the sufferers. Mr. Gerardi entered heartily into the scheme and promised to head the list with $100. Blank subscription lists were sent around to the different hotels with the request that they be placed upon the counter available for the signatures of those who desire to help the afflicted. and one of them was visible this morning at the Planters' House, which within fifteen minutes of its first appearance bore the following subscriptions:

Planters' House, $100; Chas. Baker, $5; James N. Vasey, $10; Julius H. Gerhart, $5; J. L. Cunningham, $5; H. A. Pauly, $5; Thomas Sexton, $10; J. Koch, $5; L. A. Smith, $5; A. R. Bambridge, $5; total, $155.

The present year has been a hard one with the commercial tourists, and comparatively few of them are in the city, but with these subscriptions and the amounts placed on the lists by the general public it is believed a handsome sum will be raised for the sufferers.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Proceedings in Both Houses—High License and Option Dealing.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIED, February 16.—In the Senate this morning the bill to abolish the shrinkage system in weighing hogs after the first sales was reported from the Agricultural Committe, with a recommendation that it lie on the table, and occupied considerable time, an attempt being made to bring it before the Senate. A motion to postpone consideration of the bill was carried by a vote of 16. The bill regulating the granting of continuances in criminal cases was ordered to a third reading, was reconsidered, and after amendment the bill was again ordered to a third reading. Several new bills were introduced, one of which, by Senator Merritt, was a bill to restrict telegraph monopolies. The bill to repeal an act in regard to practice in courts of record was made the special order for Thursday morning next. Two bills were advanced to a third reading. Adjourned till to-morrow.

THE HOUSE

consumed nearly the whole forenoon in a semi-political contest arising out of the proposed appointment of journal clerks. In caucus the Republicans and Democrats had each nominated one candidate, there being two to be elected, and the Republicans also nominated a candidate for bill clerk. The Committee on Contingent Expenses to-day reported a resolution for the election of the bill clerk, holding the other nominations in reserve until that was disposed of. The Democrats contested this and defeated it and also defeated consideration of a resolution to rescind rule 69, providing for the appointment of the Journal clerks. The roll was repeatedly called on motions to lay on the table, to adjourn, etc. During the day reports were made upon various bills, which were advanced to a second reading. The questions of option dealings and high licenses were discussed, and a proposition was pending at adjournment.

The Germans allege that the confiscation was not legal and claim a full right to manufacture. This is the second recent occasion when German ships have taken peremptory action to redress grievances independently of diplomatic agencies.

On the night of January 22d villages in the vicinity were injured by falling rocks and masses of lava. The extent of the damage is not yet reported. NATIONAL REVENUE will be increased this year 7,000,000 yens by an additional internal taxation, all to be devoted to the new armaments and war preparations, owing to the threatening attitude of China. Forts will be built and strengthened along the coast and large garrisons placed in Loo Choo Island. Japanese officials in Corea estimate the total revenue of that government at about $1,000,000 yearly, paid in rice, beans, cotton and hemp. Three hundred and fifty thousand yens have been given by the Japanese government for water communication by canal and river deepening between Lake Beeva and Kioto.

WASHINGTON.

Rerdell's Testimony.

WASHINGTON, D.C., February 16.—Rerdell continued his testimony in the Star-Route trial to-day. A paper purporting to have been signed by J. W. Dorsey was shown witness, but he said it was not in Dorsey's handwriting, and that Dorsey was not where he could have signed it at the time the paper was dated. A letter was read from J. W. Dorsey to his brother. He enclosed blank drafts, according to instructions, and no doubt the route (Bismarck to Tongue River) will net him or some one probably over $100,000 per annum. Witness said S. W. Dorsey instructed him to prepare affidavits on the Toquerville, Adairville route, and remarked it was only necessary in making the calculation to preserve the proportion of 150 or 200 per cent in allowing for the increase. Witness had a number of blank affidavits but they were taken from his office immediately after the verdict in the last trial.

Ingersoll Interviewed.

WASHINGTON, February 16.—The Post to-day prints an interview with Col. Ingersoll relative to the action of Rerdell, in which Ingersoll says: "I can't tell you anything about it yet. He has only begun his statement now and until he gets further along with it I cannot predict what the effect will be. If he will stick to the truth it will be all right and not in any way damage us. We were not surprised at all, for we had heard Rerdell was likely to take this course. One thing you may say, however, that the reports floating about town that Dorsey had left the city are entirely without foundation. He was at my office this evening and is not out of the city, nor will he be at any period.

More "Windsor" Litigation.

The Windsor Hotel litigation has broken out afresh. This time Messrs. McKeighan & Jones figure as attorneys for the plaintiff, the Windsor Hotel Company. There are two suits seeking to set aside the recent sale under deeds of trust. One suit is directed against Geo. E. Leighton, J. G. Chapman, Robert Eagle et. al., and the other against Theodore Washburn, Elmer Washburn and Henry B. Davis. It is alleged that Geo. E. Leighton prevented Ed. P. Barrett from bidding on the property by calling on him to pay $2,000 down at the moment. He proposed to complete his purchase within the specified time and would have bid up to $24,000, whereas the property was knocked down to a member of the Bridge family for $18,100. It has since been conveyed by deed from Bridge to Thatcher. The personal property was knocked down for $2,500 to John Bridge. The day previous to this sale there was a sale under the subsequent deed, and the personal property was knocked down for $700. The company seeks to set aside both sales.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Last night Detectives Lawler, Herbert and Howard arrested Charles Botto, Pat Morgan and John Sheply, three men who are suspected of being implicated in the recent safe burglaries in the northern portion of the city. One of these men was a "pal" of Conley, who is now serving a twenty-years' sentence in the Penitentiary. Another has been identified as a man who entered Webb's store in his shirt sleeves on a pretense of being engaged in business and getting a bill changed, while really he was inspecting the safe. A diagram the position of a safe in a store was found on one of the men. They are all held for identification. Two of the three were arrested at Eighth and Market streets, and the third at Sixth and Spruce.

Charles Pfeiffer Dying.

Harbor and Wharf Commissioner Charles Pfeiffer, who has been confined to his house by illness since the latter part of last November, is at present in an extremely critical condition. His family do not expect him to survive the coming night. His illness is caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. Mr. Pfeiffer is yet a young man, having been born in Stuttgart, Germany, about forty years ago. Previous to his appointment as Harbor and Wharf Commissioner he had been associated with Capt. Eads in the construction of the great bridge, and for the two years just previous to the adoption of the scheme and charter he had served the city in the capacity of City Engineer.

The grand total of the above, which represents the work of only nine out of the sixty odd committees who are at work, represents a total subscription of $99,325, which, added to the $100,000 raised at the Mercantile Club meeting, makes the total amount subscribed and promised to date somewhat over $200,000.

Upon the whole, the soliciting committees report that when they make their appearance. There are exceptions to the rule, of course, some of them of an amusing character. The chairman of one of the committees reported this morning that upon their visiting a store yesterday they discovered that the proprietor, hearing of their arrival, had hurriedly hidden himself under the counter. He was rooted out, however, and coaxed into putting his name down for four shares. It is said that the committee who are securing subscriptions from the keepers of restaurants are not meeting with as much success as they would like, and that some of the leading restaurateurs are inclined to hang back, urging the arguments that they have not made much money of late, and that the necessary amount is going to be raised whether they subscribe or not. There is no class of business men in the city who will more greatly profit by the Exposition, and a very handsome subscription is looked for from them.

One or two errors have appeared in the publication of the names of subscribers. It was Hurst's Hotel which subscribed $1,000; and it was William Lesser, not Leeper, who swelled the retail dry-goods list by $50.

In order to be able to enlist their sympathies and procure subscriptions from such persons as the committees are not likely to reach, the following circular will to-day be sent round by the Executive Committee:

THE EXPOSITION AND MUSIC HALL ASSOCIATION.

DEAR SIR—The "Executive Committee" created by the citizens' meeting recently held in the interest of an Exposition and Music Hall have appointed a large number of committees which are now actively engaged soliciting subscriptions to the stock of the company, which will be organized as soon as the necessary subscriptions have been secured. It is impossible to reach all of our people through these committees, and as we believe every citizen should have an opportunity to become interested and identified with this enterprise, which, if successfully carried out, will add so much to the prosperity of our city, thus benefiting all classes, from the mechanic to the capitalist—including real estate owners and professional men—we have determined to address you this circular, and ask your cooperation and assistance.

We enclose for your information the report of the Executive Committee, also an address, both of which were unanimously adopted at the last general meeting. If, after consideration, you desire to become a subscriber, please fill the enclosed blank with your name, address and number of shares desired, and return in envelope to our secretary. As $500,000 must be subscribed before the company can be organized, we trust your response will be prompt and liberal.

Shares, $25 each.

Very respectfully,

THE COMMITTEE.

A VERY IMPORTANT MEETING

of the chairmen of the various soliciting committees will be held at the Mercantile Club at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening, at which reports will be received from them of what they have done, and what they expect to do, and it is believed that their statements will show very clearly the propect of the success of the enterprise. It is especially desired, on this account, that a very full attendance is had, and that in the meantime the committees will do all they can to make the showing a thoroughly satisfactory one.

The following communication has been received from the Hotel Committee:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the columns of some of the morning papers in stating the subscriptions of the hotels Star, Monroe and Everett House were left out. Please state that these three hotels have taken their full share: Everett, $1,000; Star, $200; Monroe, $250. The Hotel Committee are now pushing their work and trust the small hotels will respond as favorably in proportion as the large. They are all equally interested to have the Exposition and it will not do for the small hotels to expect the large ones to do it all and they get a grand benefit. THE HOTEL COMMITTEE.

JURY FRAUDS.

Commissioner Cabell Does Not Believe Any Exist in St. Louis.

Immense frauds have just been discovered in the office of Jury Commissioner Caulfield in New York. Within a week Wm. F. McGrath, Patrick Cunningham, A. J. Keegan and James Jarvis, employes in the office, have been arrested, and it has been proven that the grossest bribery had prevailed. Men who did not want to serve on juries were excused by the hundreds, on the payment of sums ranging from, it is said, $10 to $500. The plan was worked systematically, and numbers of those who were levied upon were persons whose names had not been chosen at all, but who were made to believe that they were wanted by the men who were in the ring. In a general way McGrath confessed, when he was hauled up by Commissioner Caulfield, that the frauds had been going on since 1877, and that he had kept lists which showed some of the collections. These lists were obtained, and on them were found the names of nearly 4,000 persons, many of them in high standing in business and social circles. Opposite nearly all the names was placed a capital "P," meaning that they had paid the assessment. Others were marked "C," which, the men explained, meant that the assessment was yet to be collected. Others again had a large "K" affixed, which signified "kicked," or refused to pay the amount demanded. It is estimated that at least $60,000 had been collected by the ring, although Mr. Caulfield says that the stealings of the five years may reach four times that sum. The prisoners are likely to receive severe punishment, as the law is strict. The merchants and business men who paid the money are participes criminis, and are also likely to be punished.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter called on this morning to ascertain if it were probable that anything of the kind was going on in this city.

Mr. Cabell said: "I never knew of anything of the kind happening in St. Louis. The jury act of 1879, under which law I am the first Commissioner, is severe upon all misconduct or misdemeanor in office. Under section 17 of that law any summoning officer is liable to a fine and criminal proceeding for untrue or insufficient or false returns, and the court must investigate the truth and sufficiency of all causes for not summoning. Under section 21 it is a misdemeanor, etc., for any one to directly or indirectly attempt to bribe the Jury Commissioner or his deputies. Under section 22 if the Jury Commissioner or deputies accept a bribe in any sense of the word it is a misdemeanor, etc. Under section it is a misdemeanor, etc., for the Sheriff to accept a bribe.

"All officers forfeit their offices for these misdemeanors. These provisions of the law are not generally known. Some honorable men unconscious of the law regard paying for freedom from jury service simply as a business proposition. They are absolutely unaware that they are doing what is wrong or not legal."

"But the opportunity exists?"

"Of course the opportunity for bribes exists. The summoning officers of this city are the Deputy Sheriffs, and if they should be dishonest they could run the chance of detection and make some money, but the law is severe and closely watched. I do not think such a thing could be done in this city to any large extent without coming to the ears of Sheriff Mason or myself. And, above all, I do say that such a thing as bribery under the watchful eye of the Sheriff and his chosen deputies is in my judgment unworthy of a thought. As far as this office is concerned, there is no use in disguising the fact that a dishonest Jury Commissioner would be a calamity to the city."

"The checks are very complete?"

"Yes. I make out three copies of the jury lists. One goes to Sheriff Mason, another to the Judge of the Court and, I keep a third one myself. You see, therefore, that the men are well watched, even if they had the desire to accept bribes. Of course, it lies with the Jurry Commissioner to pack a jury whenever he wishes, if he wishes to face the risk and the law."

SHERIFF MASON'S OPINION

was to the effect that nothing of the kind was going on so far as he could possibly ascertain.

A Deputy Sheriff who did not want his name used said: "The temptation is big enough, you may be sure."

"How?"

"People hate jury duty worse than they do most things I know. They kick, and swear and hem and haw more when they are summoned than they do over most other misfortunes. Frequently they make money offers, and are willing to put up a considerable sum if the matter can be fixed. The other day a prominent business man tried the thing on me, and when I reminded him that he was violating the law, he laughed and said he thought I had more sense. Oh, there is lots of money in the business, if a man could escape detection. But then, you see, the court investigates all cases of excuse, and the 'old man' is so strict and so careful in the selection of his men that I don't think you will find that anything of this kind is occurring in this city."

MRS. H. M. VAILE.

The Wife of the Star Route Defendant Suicides at Independence.

A dispatch received by the POST-DISPATCH this morning from Independence, Missouri, states that Mrs. H. M. Vaile, the wife of Mr. H. M. Vaile, the defendant in the Star Route trial and the well known mail contractor, committed suicide at their home in Independence. Mr. Vaile's residence there is said to be the finest in Missouri. No details of the suicide have yet been received.

DETAILS.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, February 16.—Early yesterday morning Mrs. H. M. Vaile, the wife of the present defendant in the Star Route trial, and living at Independence, died under circumstances that, while they were suppressed and kept from publicity as long as possible by the relatives of the deceased, now clearly indicate that she committed suicide. Unusual interest will attach to the case from the fact that the suicide is one of the outgrowths of the famous trial. The Vailes occupied the finest house at Independence and were considered in remarkably happy circumstances until the developments that culminated in Vaile's being made a party to the Government prosecution. His wife, who was considerably past the middle age, felt the disgrace keenly, and ever since the first trial has been greatly depressed in spirit. Several times she has thrown out hints in her conversation that now have a peculiar significance, although nothing was particularly thought of them at the time. Since Mr. Vaile has been summoned to Washington for the present trial she has been more than usually despondent, and for the past week was suffering with a severe attack of jaundice. This probably had a good deal to do with her dejected condition. On Wednesday evening she appeared to be in better spirits, and, calling in a servant girl who had been attending her in her sickness, she gave her a valuable ring. Later in the day she took a bath and remarked to a friend, who happened to be at the house, "It's strange, isn't it, that, no matter how clean one is, they always wash them again after they are dead." Early the following morning her heavy breathing attracted attention, and she was found to be in an unconscious condition. There was a box by her bedside labeled "Morphine," and it had been filled with one-eighth of a grain pills. It was empty and she must have taken about six grains of the narcotic. A physician was at once sent for, but he arrived too late to do any good, and a short time after she died without regaining consciousness. An active effort was made by the friends to suppress any particulars that would point to suicide, and the coroner was in fact not notified until last evening, when it became apparent that the secret could no longer be held. In one of the drawers of a bureau in the bed-room a letter was found addressed to Mr. Vaile. It was sealed and no one has thus far taken the liberty of opening it, although the contents would doubtless throw light upon the tragic affair. Mr. Vaile was telegraphed to at Washington, and is expected to arrive to-morrow morning, when arrangements for the funeral will be made. The deceased had quite a wide acquaintance in the city and was generally esteemed. Her death will be a shocking surprise here.

THE DONNELLY CASE.

The Police to Keep Order in Court—The Attorneys' Case Postponed.

The corridor and rotunda of the Four Courts were crowded to-day with people attracted by the Donnelly libel suit, which was brought to a tumultuous close last Wednesday. In expectation of a scene similar to that which was enacted at the last session, the throng crushed about the court room doors this afternoon. As trouble was anticipated from the audience two police officers were stationed at the door where Chief Campbell personally superintended the work of searching everybody for concealed weapons. When the court was called to order at a quarter past two o'clock, the counsel for the State were not present and a delay ensued. Mr. Lodge was already present when Mr. McBride entered and quietly took his seat on the opposite side. The Judge then ordered the jury to withdraw, and addressing Messrs. Lodge and McBride, said, "The matter of contempt of court, committed last Wednesday evening, I will take up at the conclusion of this case." The jury then returned and were polled, and the cross-examination of Mrs. Donnelly was begun after Judge Noonan had announced that the court expected the deputies to arrest any person making any demonstration whatever, and that the police present would assist in enforcing the order.

Georgia Fox Up a Chimney.

From the Henry County Weekly.

Mr. Bose Price, of Tussahaw district, started out bird-hunting one day last week, but had not proceeded far before his dogs jumped a large gray fox. He was shortly reinforced by several other gentlemen, and the chase became quite spirited, lasting for two or three hours. Upon being closely pressed by the dogs the fox finally took refuge in Aleck Norman's house, to the great consternation of the family, who were seated around the fireside. It first ran up the chimney, but did not remain longer than a minute before it scurried down again and ran under a bed, from which place of concealment it was dislodged and promptly exterminated.

Wheat—Receipts 2,456, sks 29,800 bu. Fully as unsettled and almost as wildly excited as yesterday, but fluctuations, while frequent and violent, did not jump up and down quite so lively and trading was somewhat smaller. The market started in strong and advanced, the wet, gloomy weather inducing free buying, but the tone becoming somewhat weaker, subsequently and with more of a desire shown to sell prices eased off and the close was weak, with March ⅛c lower, April unchanged and May ⅜@¼c lower, as compared with yesterday's close. Cash grades held up stiffly and on call better prices were realized, No. 2 Mediterranean advancing most. The demand was good, millers buying some and order dealers a few cars, but most of the No. 2 red continued to go to speculators. No. 2 red $1 13@1 13¼ regular, $1 13¼@1 13⅜ in St. L.; February $1 13⅜; March $1 14½@1 14¼; April $1 16⅞@1 16, closing at $1 16¼; May $1 19¼@1 18½, closing at $1 18¼; June $1 16¾ bid; July $1 11; No. 3 red $1 08½ this side, $1 09 in E.; No. 4 $1 02½@1 03 this side; rejected 96 in E., 95 bid this side; No. 2 Mediterraneaa $1 15 in U.; No. 3 do $1 09 in C.; No. 3 spring $1 02 this side.

The market for futures was an irregular one, as the feeling was unsettled all through, but higher prices were obtained about all the time, and trading was very active, especially in May. The close was firm and at full up prices, showing advances of ⅜c for February, ½c for March, ⅜@½c for April, ⅝@¾c for May and ¾c for June over yesterday's close. Cash No. 2 grades were higher, with an active demand from speculators and shippers for No. 2 mixed; lower grades were little changed in value, but rather weak and the tendency downward, but ready sale. No. 2 mixed 55⅝@55⅞ regular; February 55⅝ to 56, closing at 55⅞; March 56 to 56⅝, closing at 56½; April 57¼ to 57½, closing at 57¼ @⅜; May 57¾@⅞ to 58⅝@¾, closing at 58½@⅝; June 58½ bid; No. 2 white-mixed 56½ in C.; rejected do 54½ in V., 55½ bid this side; new do 55¾ this side; new mixed 53½@53 this and 53¼ E. side; rejected 52½ in C., 52¾ in St. L.; 51¾@51½ E. side; no grade 46 bid this side.

Cotton.

In sympathy with other markets, the local market for spot cotton was steady at unchanged quotations. There was a moderate demand and the movement was fair, but still larger than for several days past. Sales up to 2:30 p. m. aggregated 1,691 bales. All other markets, both foreign and domestic, were unchanged, and quietness was the prevailing tone. Futures opened at a decline, and trading at the different points was light. At New York prices were 1 to 2 points off at the first call, advancing a point or two up to 1:30 p.m., when they took a downward turn, and indications pointed to a lower range at the close. Liverpool opened in buyers' favor and closed dull at a decline. Yarns and fabrics at Manchester dull and tending downwards. New Orleans' future market was quiet and from 1 to 2 points lower at the opening and ruling irregular, with promise of a further reduction before the close. Sales up to 1 p. m. were 18,800 bales, while New York reported 23,000 up to the same time.

CATTLE—A slow and easy feeling pervaded the market at the opening this morning and values were weak and offish for all descriptions. The supply was not large or prices would have most certainly suffered a big drop. Buyers were poorly represented, butchers and retailers having supplied themselves yesterday were not doing much and both Eastern and interior shippers, were obliged to hold off owing to the high water and the difficulty of shipping eastward, consequently but little business was done, and the outlook for the rest of the day is not very promising. Yesterday's closing market was quite encouraging in the way of sales, and the offerings before the close were pretty well cleared up, and salesmen congratulated themselves that such was the case. Prices obtained were fully up to those of the past few days, and although the feeling was easier values held up remarkably well. Quotations at 11 a. m. to-day were weak, but sales were too small to base quotations upon. We quote:

HOGS—The market at the early opening this morning was in a very uncertain condition. Buyers and sellers were sitting or standing around idle, and the outlook, to say the least, was not particularly bright. Shippers had orders to fill, but it was very doubtful if they would be able to ship any until they were satisfied on this point. Nothing of course was done. Later word was brought that besides the S. & St. L., the C. & A. would receive; this being confirmed, the scales were put to work and sales weighed up at a range from $6 25 @6 45 for light to good Yorkers, and $6 50@6 75 for heavier. There was no demand from packers. Whittaker's buyer, considering the weather against their operating without ice, and the house not being in condition for that, it was very doubtful if anything would be done. Frank Dean purchased a few loads of heavy hogs for an East side house, for which he paid Metcalfe & Moore $6 85@7 for hogs of over 300 lbs. weight. At 10 a. m. considerable strength was shown in values, and trade began to exhibit some life. Quotations at this time, as far as they could be obtained, were as follows: Light to good Yorkers $6 25@6 45; mixed to really good heavy packing $6 35@6 75; butchers to extra $6 65@7; skips and culls $5 50@6 20.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1883.

THE chief objection to the cable railway has now been removed. Pine street is to be spared.

JUPITER PLUVIUS has taken charge of the Street-Cleaning Department to-day and St. Louis gets a free bath.

ANOTHER blizzard is prowling around in the Northwest, and cold weather may be looked for in this section about to-morrow.

BOB INGERSOLL refuses to believe in God, but continues to believe in DORSEY. This is one of the most sublime illustrations of faith in modern times.

THE merchants and business men of Cincinnati, Chicago and Louisville have found annual Expositions and Festivals profitable. Shall St. Louis keep in the rear eternally?

"POOR old Massachusetts!" Her Insurance Commissioner goes out of office with his pockets stuffed with bribes paid by the most genteel insurance company in the State.

SENATOR FERRY'S firm has failed for about a million dollars, but if he is reëlected to the Senate he may yet expect to live in a house as fine as JIM BLAINE'S or WILLIAM WINDOM'S.

THE stock of the St. Louis Fair Association, though not dividend-paying, is always at par and always negotiable. Does anybody suppose that the stock of a well managed Exposition would be less?

EVERY share of stock of the Exposition and Masonic Hall Association should have been taken this week. Only about one-half of the sum required has been subscribed. Push on the work.

FILLED with alarm at the prospect of quail-eating matches next year, Mr. LEE has introduced a bill to prevent the killing of quail in Missouri until 1885. By this time the mania will probably be over.

THE citizens of Cincinnati now flatter themselves that they have had the "full strength of the deal." The waters are beginning to subside but they will leave behind a great deal of detritus and distress.

WHEN the snow floods from the upper Missouri and Mississippi unite with the raging waters of the Ohio, there will be trouble and desolation for the inhabitants of the flat alluvial lands between Cairo and the belize.

THE confession of RERDELL places DORSEY and BRADY in the position of that poor counterfeiter who complained of the difficulty of finding honest men to dispose of the "queer" and account for the proceeds.

THE British Parliament has come down to modern times and will probably permit its members to make an affirmation when they object to taking an oath. Hitherto all members of Parliament have been either believers or hypocrites.

PRINCESS LOUISE has set the fashion of going to Bermuda in winter to eat onions, and, one big speculator having cornered the onion market in New York, the steamship Orinoco has just sailed for Bermuda, crowded with Gotham's gay belles.

THE people of Cincinnati are taking care of themselves nobly as a general rule, but the horny-handed owners of skiffs are taking care of themselves so well that when the flood subsides they will probably be found pricing the new "Queen Anne" houses in Walnut Hills.

EVERYTHING phenomenal brings out the prophets of evil. They are already reminding us of the fact that the great floods of 1832 were followed by the cholera and that the cholera came up the valley from New Orleans in 1848 but a few months after the great flood of December, 1847, went down.

CAN the Board of Public Improvements give any satisfactory expanation of the condition of Twelfth street from Chouteau avenue to the Bridge? The west side of that street, which should have a sidewalk, is a filthy morass. It has been only fifteen years since the west side of the street was improved.

THE bill to aid in the establishment of a thorough militia system in Missouri is progressing favorably in the House. It should become a law. The sum asked for is $50,000, to be distributed over two years. The State is in a prosperous financial condition, and it could well afford to pay twice this sum to put its militia on a decent and effective footing.

ISAAC KNAPP, undergoing a sentence for life in the Ohio Penitentiary, was pardoned by Gov. FOSTER, on the ground that his health was broken down. The physicians had certified that he was dying from abscess of the liver. Out of prison, he quickly recovered his health, resumed his old disorderly habits, and in his cups let out the secret that his failing health was the result of eating an occasional bar of soap, the effects of which he imposed on the doctors as symptoms of abscess of the liver. Gov. FOSTER, on learning of the fraud by which the pardon had been obtained, revoked it, and had KNAPP arrested and taken back to the Penitentiary. But KNAPP was taken before the Supreme Court of Ohio on a writ of habeas corpus, and that tribunal has ordered his discharge, holding that a pardon must stand as an irrevocable executive act. Therefore, let every incarcerated prisoner, as he toils at his bench, remember that while there is life there is soap.

ONE of the reasons which induced the Massachusetts Commissioner of Insurance to resign is said to have been the appearance in the hands of Governor BUTLER of the Commissioner's receipt for $4,000, which had been paid him by one of the Massachusetts insurance companies for making a favorable report on the company. Upon this the Commissioner wilted, and wrote a very genteel letter, saying that he was much grieved by the adverse criticisms of his management, and that he had no desire at his time of life "to oppose differences and to fall into controversies and antagonisms." If such a thing had happened in "poor old Missouri" we should never have heard the end of it, but in Massachusetts it will be suppressed and hushed up.

RERDELL'S CONFESSION.

The sudden change of course on the part of the Star Route thief, RERDELL, yesterday, will not add anything to the certainty of the public's belief in the criminality of the gang now on trial in Washington, but it is important as an indication that the weakness of their lame and impotent defense is making itself felt among the conspirators. The evidence from the start has been so direct and so conclusive as to leave no doubt in the mind of any one of the actual guilt of the gang, and their attorneys seem to have understood that the only hope of escape lay in taking advantage of some technicality of the law, or in wearying the Government, or catching the prosecution in some irregularity. As for the fixing of the jury and such other customary little menuvers as naturally suggest themselves in the congenial atmosphere of Washington, that was an ordinary feature of the defense.

But no quibble of the law can stand against the clear, positive and well supported statements of RERDELL, who has the facts in his possession, and who has undertaken to show the Government the whole inside workings of the plot by which the swindle was accomplished. This breaks down the pretense of the defense and leaves the boss thieves, DORSEY and BRADY, absolutely unprotected and fairly convicted on the evidence. It should not take many days to bring this disgraceful trial to a close and to send the criminals to the penitentiary.

MALTHUS IN FRANCE.

From the great to-do which is made about the slow rate of increase in France one would think that it was a dreadful calamity in that densely populated country to refuse to increase the population beyond the means of subsistence. In reality, however, the stationary population is merely a proof of prudence, good sense and self-restraint on the part of the French people which might be wisely imitated by some of the nations which are wasting their pity on a country that does not need it.

In England the increase of population is largely an increase of pauperism, and the horrible pauperism of England would be worse than it is if the English people were not as deficient in patriotism as they are in self-restraint, and if they were not able to guard against the consequences of their own imprudence by settling in foreign lands.

In this country the foreign land is at our door, and we are protected against the disastrous consequences of an excessive increase of population by constant removals into the new frontier States.

But at our present rate of increase it will be only a hundred years before we will be as thickly populated as France is now, and what will we do then? There will then be no government land for us to occupy, no foreign countries for us to move our surplus population to and then we will be compelled to do just what France is doing now, to restrain our rate of increase and prevent our population from pressing on the means of subsistence. We are too apt to fancy that there is no end to our resources and to our capacity, but a little reflection would suffice to show that the end is not far off, and that in a country where that end is reached population must remain stationary under penalty of pauperism and misery.

THE DUTY ON BOOKS.

THE Globe-Democrat, which is ordinarily in favor of the protection of American industries, makes a strong exception in opposing the duty on books, apparently confounding the duty on books with a duty on learning. The truth of the situation is that the manufacture of books is purely a trade which depends for its continuance in any one locality on the same conditions of cost and competition as the manufacture of hats and caps, or iron or cotton. As the cost of labor in the book trade is cheaper in England than in the United States the first and direct result of free trade in books would be that the works of American authors would be set up, printed and bound in England and shipped to this country to be sold, and the book-publishing business in this country would wholly disappear. It would not buy a pound of paper or of publishers' supplies. It would not give employment to a single type-setter, proof-reader, book-binder or clerk. It would destroy all the uses of the book-presses, and even ordinary job printing which was not needed immediately would be sent over to England. This would not only ruin an American industry and deprive American skilled labor of one of its most remunerative occupations, but it would take out of this country and send to England or Germany the whole amount of money which is now circulated in the book business. Will the Globe-Democrat favor the public with some explanation of its remarkable advocacy of the ruin of the book-publishing business?

SNUBBED.

In advance of the inevitable investigation into the management of the Signal Service under Gen. HAZEN, it will not do to assume the truth of the charges made by Congressman BELTZHOOVER. Congressman BELTZHOOVER has, on a previous occasion, shown that he was capable of going off at half cock and making most positive assertions on the most flimsy foundations, and little attention would be given to his charges if it were not for the fact that HAZEN'S appointment was a piece of notorious favoritism.

But the very strange request which HAZEN has made to the Secretary of War will go very far towards persuading the public that Gen. HAZEN is ignorant on a great many commonsense points that he ought to be well acquainted with. He has asked the Secretary of the War Department to ask the President of the Senate to appoint a committee to investigate charges against an army officer which were uttered in debate in the House of Representatives. The reply of the Secretary of War was courteous, but it contained the severest snub, in all probability, that has ever been administered to an officer so altitudinous in rank. If General HAZEN knows as little of the weather as he does of the organization of the Government of the United States he should not ask an investigation. He should resign his position and request the privilege of going through the course of West Point again in order to brush up his neglected learning.

THE INCOME TAX.

It is a little bit strange that the question of substituting a tax on incomes for some of the more objectionable forms of taxation, which was widely discussed before Congress met, has been almost lost sight of in the struggle over the tariff and in the discussion over the internal revenue. Yet it is just at such a time that the value and importance of an income tax would be most apt to be appreciated. We do not propose to go into the discussion of the general question of such a tax. The fundamental idea in the adjustment of taxation should be to harmonize taxation with value, and this is a principle which is almost wholly ignored in the existing schemes of national taxation.

The tariff duties fall more heavily on the poor in proportion to their means than on the rich. Some articles of luxury are taxed up to the full limit of safety, but even these do not cost to their consumers or owners as much in proportion to their means as the cotton and woolen fabrics of the poor man's clothing cost him. The same is true still more strikingly of the taxes on tobacco and beer and spirits, which look as if they had been adjusted by a rich man's government.

The tax proposed by Senator PLUMB of five per cent on incomes derived from securities would be a new and welcome departure. It would test a great many questions of tax collection and revenue resources which would be of great value and would point out the way to relieving our industries of a great many burdens which now weigh heavily on them.

WE wish that President ARTHUR, Governor BUTLER, Governor CRITTENDEN, Mayor EWING and other great and illustrious political personages in this country whose position places them under the necessity of addressing their fellow citizens in official messages might be persuded to read carefully the address of their imperial and royal cousin Queen VICTORIA, who yesterday addressed the Lords and gentlemen reassembled in Parliament. This speech occupies less than half a column of one of our newspapers and may be read by any sane man in something less than ten minutes. The contrast between this brief, coherent and intelligible document and the long and weary essays which at regularly recurring intervals are inflicted on American editors and proof-readers—the only classes who read messages—is an evidence of superior political intelligence such as we would not willingly concede to the representative of an effete monarchy.

IT will be a surprise to most people, no doubt, to learn that the present Grand Jury recommends in its report the establishment of a whipping-post in St. Louis for ordinary offenders, such as drunkards, wife-beaters, vagrants, etc. The theory is that the Workhouse has no terrors for the professional class of small offenders. This is true, and it is also true that the whipping-post is "good medicine" for these very people. But can we afford to set up a whipping-post in Missouri? Is not our "barbarism" sufficiently well advertised now? If there is to be a return to the methods of punishment popular with our ancestors—a renaissance, so to speak—we prefer that it should start in cultivated and practical New England. With a send-off of that kind we might be able to burn a witch in Missouri in the course of a year or two.

ALL the lobbyists who infest the Senate end of the Capitol in Washington are provided with cards crediting them as Private Secretaries of Senators. This admits them to the floor. The nuisance has grown so great that Senator EDMUNDS yesterday offered a resolution requiring Senators to certify to the Sergeant-at-Arms when they appoint Private Secretaries that such persons are actually employed in the menial work of sorting Senatorial papers, writing letters pursuant to dictation, and looking after the Senatorial demijohn and the Senatorial work. We are afraid that under this ruling Col. JOE RICKEY, of Callaway, will be compelled to exercise his magnetic influence upon Senators from the front row of the gallery.

IT is a matter of record that the professional patrons of the city Work-house would rather be serving sentence in cold weather than running at large. They are no sooner out than they commit a picayune offense in order to be returned, and petty crime is thus stimulated rather than surpressed. It is a remarkable fact, however, that after a man has had his cuticle removed at the whipping-post he never returns for a second dose. If he falls into the hands of the man with the cat a second time, it is a clear case of inadvertence on his part. It was the contemplation of these historical facts, no doubt, that induced the Grand Jury to recommend today the establishment of a whipping-post in St. Louis.

MRS. LANGTRY'S engagement in Cincinnati this week has been rather disastrous. The floods have distracted the burghers—never much disposed to dramatic art—and the Lily has been displaying her charms to empty benches. Mr. HALSTEAD, writing editorially in the Commercial Gazette of the engagement, says:

> The proclamation of beauty, and especially the unhappy and most inapt phrase, "professional beauty," has been unfortunate. Nothing could have been better calculated to arouse prejudices, excite jealousies and stimulate all sorts of insidious animosities. Then Mrs. Langtry has not been lucky in the acquaintances that were associated with her, in an unprofessional way, from first to last. She has been handicapped by alleged friends, and is indebted only to brilliant business management.

THE news from Texas is slightly monotonous. A single day's record tells us of a fight for the trusteeship of the school-house at Graham, in which four men were shot, of the murder of the station agent at Webb Station, on the I. & G. N. Railroad, of a stranger murdered at Weatherford for stepping on the toes of a Texan, and of a tenant in Ellis county braining his landlord with an axe in a quarrel over his rent. If the Texans followed the pious Mexican custom of marking the scene of a murder with a cross, Texas would be pretty well dotted.

MAYOR THOMPSON, of Detroit, is a very nice kind of a reformer. He promised to fix up a delegation for the Legislature that would vote for FERRY for Senator if FERRY would make him Collector at Detroit, and, this bargain being made, he proceeded to work for FERRY. Subsequently learning that FERRY had promised the same office to another man, he went back on FERRY, and has revealed his baseness before an investigating committee. Mayor THOMPSON would be a good man to appoint on the Civil Service Commission.

THE tenth census says that the proportion of insane persons, deaf mutes, idiots and blind persons in this country has increased at a fearful ratio since the war. The number of such persons in 1850 was 50,994; in 1860, 68,451; in 1870, 98,484, and in 1880, 251,698. That is to say these unfortunes have been more than quadrupled in number during the last twenty years, increasing more than twice as fast as the population of the country has increased. This looks like a very bad showing, but perhaps it is not true.

OUR thanks are due to Postmaster-General HOWE, Assistant Postmaster-General HATTON and all whom it may concern, for Brooklyn papers as late as February 8, and for New York papers of last Sunday. We do not object to the Post-office Department reading our exchanges, but we should like to have them sent on to us afterwards.

THE New York Sun has a powerful editorial saying: "That which is permanent is always to be preferred to that which is transient." There are quite a number of permanent nuisances in St. Louis which would be greatly preferred if they were transient.

THEY are trying two criminals in Grayson, Ky., and march them in and out of court under an escort of fifty militiamen. In St. Louis we are compelled to guard the lawyers to protect them against each other.

The Musical Union Concert.

ST. LOUIS, February 15, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The St. Louis Musical Union is the crack musical society of this city. Its orchestra consists of fifty-six pieces, and is the finest west of the Mississippi River. It is maintained by subscription payable annually, and none but subscribers are allowed to attend its concerts. Its subscribers comprise most of the true and elevated lovers of music in the city, and they pay heavily for their privileges. This society was appealed to by Archbishop Ryan, Bishop Robertson and many other divines, lawyers and business men to depart from the rule of the Union and give one concert open to the public, in order that the public as well as the subscribers may learn what St. Louis can do in the musical line, to appropriate the proceeds to the German flood sufferers as an "international courtesy." The Union consented, and the whole programme was arranged and published. After all this the Ohio Valley has been inundated, but this does not prevent the people of St. Louis from being "courteous," nor from enjoying the very best music this city can produce. If we are to have—and we will have—a musical hall, must we not have a popular taste and sentiment to sustain it? The Musical Union promises to surpass itself on the occasion—next Tuesday—and the most notable orchestral concert of the season, or of any season in St. Louis, may be enjoyed by all. St. Louis is fast becoming a musical center, but this concert will test the extent to which its people are devoted to the most elevating and least obnoxious of all human public entertainments. The attendance in the late concerts in Cincinnati was from 4,000 to 7,000 people night after night, and there ought to be an outpouring here. With many thanks for the aid the POST-DISPATCH has already given, I entreat you to call the public attention to this grand concert to bring out the people.

ST. LOUIS.

A Poet Attunes His Lyre.

ST. LOUIS, February 15, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A little "squib" in your editorial column last evening has brought forth the following:

When I came to this city ten years ago,
Said I to myself, said I:
I'll settle myself down and help the town grow,
Said I to myself, said I.
So I rented a store and started a biz,
And with a few dollars and the aid of my phiz,
Was getting a comfortable St. Louis whiz,
Said I to myself, said I.
I struggled and toiled, greased and oiled,
Said I to myself, said I;
Till I was quite thoroughly cooked, par-boiled,
Said I to myself, said I.
I had nightmares of Leadville and Kansas City,
Belleville, Chicago (horrible pity)
Deadwood, 'Frisco and Cincinnatity,
Said I to myself, said I;
But I shall hover about here yet for awhile,
Said I to myself, said I;
For the prospect is rich for striking thick "ile,"
Said I to myself, said I.
The Exposition will give us new life,
It's the next thing to having a brand new wife;
So good-by to anxiety, care and strife,
Oh, give me some stock, says I.

The Stage and Pulpit.

BEARDSTOWN, February 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was very much interested in the P.-D.'s account of the funeral ceremonies of C. R. Thorne, the actor. But does not the positive refusal to have a minister officiate, because he is a minister, show quite as much prejudice against religion as for a minister to ignorantly and ungentlemanly arraign the drama on such occasions show like hatred for the stage? Are there not ministers in New York and elsewhere; liberal, noble and generous-hearted men, who would have been only too glad for such an occasion as Mr. Thorne's death presented to show the stage in its better phases, and the actor as one of our most influential educators. In order to bring the pulpit and stage into closer relations, which is very desirable, ought not the respective prejudice of each against the other be discountenanced?

ST. LOUIS, February 15, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please tell me through the columns of your valuable paper whether it is advisable for a poor man to invest in one or two shares of the proposed Exposition. If there any danger of losing the money invested? Please post one who is anxious to be advised. T. S.

[We consider the Exposition and Music Hall shares a good investment. Every man who is able should try to secure at least one share. Of course there is the element of risk as there is in all investments, but the enterprise with anything like proper management will pay a dividend.—ED. P.-D.]

A Difference in Feet.

ST. LOUIS, February 15, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please state the difference, if any, between one square foot and one foot square, and oblige, CONSTANT READER.

[There is no difference. But between two feet square and two square feet there is a difference of two square feet, because two feet square is equal to four square feet.—ED. P.-D.]

The J. P. Has His Fee.

The best, the most truthful decription of Mexico and its commercial and manufacturing advantages we have ever seen is contained in the synopis of a recent address by John A. Dillon, of the POST-DISPATCH, St. Louis, before the Hispano-Americano Club, of that city, and reported in the Globe-Democrat. We shall obtain and produce it in our columns, and wish the entire address could be read by every foreign merchant, manufacturer and capitalist. Mr. Dillon has been a friendly, observant, but impartial visitor. He gives the facts in an eloquent manner, and deserves the gratitude of the Mexican people. Nothing would prove of greater profit to Chihuahua than to have a gentleman of such ability and standing visit and give the public the fruits of his observation.

"I WAS very sorry to see William Ward hung," said Mr. C. O. Bishop, the attorney, speaking of the batch of hangings that occurred at the City Jail about a year ago. "There was a curious thing occurred there. You know Charlie Ellis and Kotovsky were hung on one Friday and Ward and Baber on the following Friday. Ward had a Bible which he was going to give me when he died. He had written my name neatly on the fly-leaf with a token of regard, and was going to leave it for me on the day he was hung. During the excitement that attended the first hanging Kotovsky put on Ward's coat and was hung and buried in it before the mistake was discovered. The Bible was in the pocket, and was consequently buried with Kotovsky. Ward told me of his intentions, and how they were frustrated, and the discovery, the night before he was hung himself."

"I THINK," said M. B. Curtis, "some rules for the lessening or suppression of the nuisance of from 50 to 250 men rushing out between acts to see other men and coming back chewing cloves and having odors other than those of Araby the Blest clinging to them should be adopted, and I suggest the following: 1. Hang upon the entr' acte curtain the sign, 'Five minutes' recess for gentlemen to change their breaths!' 2. Reserve two sections near the doors, the one for tipplers and the other for free lunch artists. Have the seats and checks appropriately designated and the occupants supplied with cuspidors. 3. Reserve all aisle seats for bar-room nomads at a slightly advanced price. For the the information and guidance of gentlemen given to irrigating themselves in this way I would say that a lady of sensitive nostrils can recognize liquors and absinthe upon the masculine breath 1 seat off; ale and beer, 2; wine, 3; brandy, 4; whisky, 5; rum, 6; rum and tobacco, 7; rum, tobacco and onions, 12. "THE statistics of St. Louis compare very favorably with those of other cities with respect to mortality from pneumonia, notwithstanding our bad reputation," remarked Dr. Luedeking, the other day. "They are only excelled by those of the lake cities. Take 1875, the last year for which I have comparative statistics. In that year the per cent in St. Louis was 5 plus; New York, 8 plus; Philadelphia, 4; Brooklyn, 7; Chicago, 1 plus, Boston, 7. They range from 4 to 8 per cent, with very few below St. Louis. Something new about the disease has been discovered. Scientists are now inclined to define it as an inflammatory disease, with an element of contagion—not strictly contagious, but what we call contagious miasmatic, as, like typhoid, it may be communicated in certain stages and circumstances. A remarkable instance of this came under my observation recently. An old gentleman, about fifty years of age, was taken with pneumonia, and was nursed by his brother, who was also stricken; he was nursed by his wife, and she too was taken, and within ten days of the beginning all three were dead."

GRAND JURY REPORT.

More Suggestions Concerning the Dramshops.

The St. Louis Delegation at Jefferson City--The Whipping-Post Suggested--A Readable Report.

At noon to-day the January Grand Jury, one of the most active that has ever occupied the inquisition quarters at the Four Courts, returned into the Criminal Court and made final report of the work accomplished since the first of the present year. A special report, the result of searching inquiry and much labor was made in the early part of the term on the dram-shop license question. This was published at the time. The January grand jury, which was discharged from further service to-day, was composed of the following gentlemen: Henry M. Blossom, foreman, Byron Newell, John E. Rankin, Theodore G. Meyer, Frank O. Sawyer, Oscar L. Whitelaw, Wm. C. Lange, Wm. C. Wilson, John S. Cavender, Charles R. Lewis, John F. Brooks and Joseph Franklin. The following is the report to-day submitted to Judge Van Waggoner:

To the Hon. Garrett S. Van Wagoner, Judge of the St. Louis Criminal Court:

SIR—The Grand Jury, having fully completed the docket and made the investigations indicated in your instructions, beg leave to submit their final report and ask to be discharged.

THE DRAMSHOPS.

In a previous special report we referred to this matter at length, giving the results of testimony furnished by persons, official and unofficial, whose connection with this subject enables them to speak from the most intimate practical experience therewith. As, under the law governing grand jury investigations, there could be no disclosure of the personality of the witnesses nor of the details of their testimony, they felt free to speak openly and without reserve. There was thus afforded an opportunity that could be gained in no other way to learn the whole unbiased truth. We desire to repeat that the substance of our special report on this subject was not intended to be considered the individual or collective opinion merely of this grand jury. As already stated, it was the summing up of comprehensive and concurrent testimony by competent witnesses.

The facts thus presented in the form of a report cannot, therefore, be dismissed with a flippant remark that "the Grand Jury did not know what they were talking about." The report was drawn mildly with the purpose of avoiding what might to any seem sensational. The truth concerning the excesses of the dramshops as now constituted; their deplorable effect upon masses of the population; their contribution to the volume of crime and pauperism, directly and indirectly nine-tenths of the whole; and the consequent enormous burden upon all industries, is very much broader and more startling than was indicated in that report. Indeed upon this subject, with the facts before us, we say deliberately that it is almost impossible to use the language of exaggeration. We are therefore much surprised to learn upon what seems authority that a majority of the St. Louis delegation at Jefferson City are opposed to any new legislation concerning dramshops, alleging that the present law is good enough if enforced. We tell them, upon the warrant of incontrovertible testimony, that the present law cannot be properly enforced, and it is not nearly "good enough" for this city if it could be enforced. This question is one of simple justice to the immense preponderance of numbers and of business values in the city they were chosen to represent. It is not a question of prohibition. For the main purposes in view it is not even one of temperance. It is a vital question of the reduction of crime by a better regulation of the saloons, involving the closing of many of the worst of them and a much increased revenue from those of a better class that will remain.

What is termed "high license" takes from no man any native or acquired right. It does not attempt to legislate out of existence any known business, engagement or privilege, legitimate or illegitimate. It simply demands from a traffic that has no recognized counterpart some more reasonable pecuniary return for the enormous drain that traffic makes upon the public purse. It does not attempt, by any means, to balance the account; inasmuch as any grade of license that made the dramshops pay back for all their definitely ascertained prejudice to social order and general prosperity would require a much heavier tax upon them than, within our knowledge, has ever been proposed. There cannot be a thoughtful, well-informed man in this community who does not see in the light thrown upon the subject the business necessity of imposing stricter conditions upon a traffic whose return to the body politic for a permitted existence is an appalling aggregate of "contentions, woes and sorrows," of direct taxation and related loss and injury. From some source this city, as all agree, must speedily have a larger income. There is nothing else so abundantly able to yield that revenue, and nothing that, in justice to all persons and classes, so obviously ought to yield it, as the saloon interest. We are confident that any fair and full investigation of actual facts will in every way confirm these conclusions, and we are reluctant to believe that the representatives of this city in the Legislature are finally committed to such regard for a comparatively insignificant number of saloon-keepers that they will consentingly ignore the various advantages to the city at large which would come from a much higher dramshop license.

THE CITY INSTITUTIONS.

We visited and examined the Jail, Workhouse, House of Refuge, Insane Asylum, Poor-house, Female Hospital and City Hospital. In all of them we found courteous and, we believe, vigilant and faithful officers. Every facility for the most thorough investigation was freely given us.

In the Jail and the Work-house we found as much neatness as is reasonably attainable under the circumstances. The food furnished to the prisoners is sufficient in quantity and of general good quality. Complaints are common of course, but they are without substantial foundation.

On the whole subject of minor offenses we believe, in common with many others, that there is already a necessity, which every succeeding year will more sharply emphasize, for a different treatment of offenders than that now in vogue. The practical common sense of urban communities is brushing aside a good many sentimental cobwebs that obscure an easy solution of the problem. Whether for the "drunks," the brawlers, the disturbers of the peace and the wife-beaters there ought to be a speedy return to the old-fashioned whipping-post, or its like, may be a question, but the idea that the present method of dealing with this class of offenders is in any considerable degree punitory, or in any degree at all reformitory, is a transparent delusion. After one term in the Work-house the criminal finds a second term about as much a picnic as a punishment. He is there one of a gang of congenial associates under quite as satisfactory physical conditions as would be natural to him anywhere. In such a large and fairly homogeneous companionship the individual sense of disgrace and loss is blunted or extinguished altogether, and the moral and physical adaptation of himself to his surroundings is immediate and in most cases final. On account of the unyielding pressure upon the capacity of the place his discharge is often made before his term has been completed, simply to give room for the throng of new offenders or old offenders under new arraignments that the courts are sending down. We believe the remedy for this increasingly bad state of the city's criminal "refuge" is not an enlargement of space and the shelter contiguous to the "rock-pile;" but some sharper, quicker, more individualized punishment accomplished at much less cost.

Chiefly from causes referred to in the beginning of this report, all the city institutions are over crowded. Every year apparently shows an increase far beyond the percentage that would naturally come from an increase of population. Unless something is done to limit in some degree the most obvious crime-producing agencies, or, as already suggested, to give to certain classes of criminals a different form of punishment, an enlargement of most of the reformatory and charitable institutions of the city will soon be called for.

The Poor-house now contains 371 paupers and 388 insane persons denominated "incurables." The number exceeds any proper provision for them, with the present capacity and appointments of the buildings, and the Superintendent has merely to do the best he can. On the day we were there the lack of water pressure in the Compton Hill Reservoir had left the Poor-house without any water supply whatever from the city mains. The general effect of such a deprivation in such a place can be imagined, and instinctive suggestions of the horrifying possibilities of peril to the inmates under such a deprivation chill the blood in any one who realizes what the circumstances might import. Facts like this add emphasis to the argument against the waste of water now so common, and for a more adequate supply.

The management of the House of Refuge by Superintendent Shaffer, and of the Insane Asylum by Dr. Howard and his assistants can only be mentioned in terms of strong commendation. The general system and order, the careful attention to neatness, everywhere apparent, and the abundant evidence of executive ability faithfully applied, were very gratifying. Nobody who has ever found it within his duty or his privilege to examine into the working of these institutions can fail to see that the city is fortunate in having in its service such officials. They confer upon it both advantage and honor.

Not less valuable are the recognized ability and fidelity of Dr. Dean, physician in charge of the City Hospital. To his skill as a physician and firmness as an executive officer he adds a most conscientious guardianship of the city's interest in a position where unskillfulness or vacillation would entail upon the city a heavy expense. We recommend for an officer of such proved capacity and sincerity an enlargement of discretionary power as to the employment of assistants in all departments of the hospital.

The Female Hospital is admirably adapted to its uses, among other deficiencies a proper ventilation being unattainable. It has at the present time 227 inmates. As much is done for their comfort and recovery as is possible under the circumstances.

THE HEALTH OFFICER.

We deem it equally just and suitable to refer in this connection to the faithful and efficient work of Mr. Francis, whose office requires courage, firmness and impartiality in an exceptional degree. The Health Officer's responsibilities are so varied and so little localized in any one place or institution that his valuable services fail to gain the recognition, and not infrequently the credit, they deserve. In how many ways the characteristic energy and personal devotion to his duties shown by Mr. Francis have guarded an exposed population from danger, and promoted its advantage, only those fully realize who have given much thought and attention to this subject.

CONTRACTS FOR SUPPLIES.

We found in the Jail on the 8th of January, and, except the House of Refuge, in all the other institutions on the 7th of this month, very poor bread, the middle portion of the loaves being mere dough and the outside portions innutritious. The barrels of flour from which this bread was made bore the brand of the official inspectors for the city. We had samples submitted to an examination by inspectors of recognized capacity and also by flour dealers, who separately declared these samples very much below the grade required by the city's contract. We have since learned that eighty or more barrels were recalled by the manufacturers and a better quality substituted—a fact that does little credit to the judgment and conscientiousness employed in the original "official" inspection. We recommend that in future the official inspectors use sufficient carefulness to prevent a recurrence of this indefensible embarrassment and loss to the city institutions. The other supplies examined by us appeared to be of good quality throughout.

In this connection we deem it only just to add that Mr. Garesche has formulated a very admirable and exact method to be followed in the purchase and delivery of the city's supplies, and exhibits commendable intelligence and accuracy in all the details of his office. Municipal administration is generally credited with being, in matters of this nature, inconsequent and wasteful; but quite the reverse of this is true in the case of the St. Louis Commissioner of Supplies.

THE CITY ACCOUNTS.

We had before us the principal records of the Comptroller's office necessary to an understanding of the system by which the city revenue is collected, accounted for and disbursed. Mr. Adreon's explanations were lucid and gratifying, showing a quick and perfect personal comprehension of all the details of his office. To the excellent provision of the Scheme and Charter relating to collection of the revenue, the Comptroller has added several original features that are equally admirable. The result is a definite working plan, harmonious in all its parts, supplementing the individual caprice of the different departments and general incoherency of other days. Mr. Adreon's plan is entirely inclusive without being in any way involved or intricate. The balances by which one department is a check upon another related thereto are finely adjusted and easily comprehended. The clerks and accountants know themselves to be possibly subject to an examination at any unexpected moment, and that their records and vouchers must be at all times and in all respects "in line." Apparently no considerable defalcation can occur without collusion between a number of officials and their subordinates. It is obvious too, that Mr. Adreon's methods have not only simplified, but have amplified the collection of the revenue. We regard the St. Louis Comptroller as both a model officer and the author of a model system of municipal bookkeeping.

THE CIRCUIT ATTORNEY.

Through a well-known and respected citizen, himself a prominent attorney, Mr. Harris sent an earnest request that this Grand Jury would investigate his action in the Slayback-Cockerill matter, referred to in the complaint to Gov. Crittenden of Messrs. Bond and C. E. Slayback, here appended as follows:

"The past conduct of Circuit Attorney Harris, and his clerk, Marshall F. McDonald, in withholding the clothing of Col. Slayback and failing to present other material evidence before the Grand Jury gives as reason to apprehend that a similar course may be pursued in future, and also that no efficient prosecution can be expected from Circuit Attorney Harris of any indictment returned against Mr. Cockerill."

This grand jury find, as a matter of fact, that during the session of the last Grand Jury neither Mr. Harris nor Mr McDonald had possession of the clothes or other effects of Col. Alonzo W. Slayback, deceased, and that they did not in any manner obstruct or delay the the production of the fullest testimony in the case.

JURY RECORDS.

We recommend the purchase of an iron safe with combination lock, in which to keep, under the charge of the Assistant Attorney, the records of grand juries during their session. The room now contains only common desks with common locks; and these are not proper safeguards of important testimony reduced to writing, and of those facts which belong alone in the place where they are first divulged.

THE ASSISTANT CIRCUIT ATTORNEY.

Our thanks are due to Mr. Sullivan for his uniformly courteous and ready response to our requests; for his fidelity in securing testimony, and for the ability with which he prepared the cases submitted for our consideration.

At the conclusion Judge Van Waggoner addressed the following thanks to the jury:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY—It remains but for the court to give you its thanks for the zeal which you have manifested in the discharge of your duties. I will further say that it has given me great gratification that there were no leaks coming out of the Grand Jury room this time, so far as I have been able to hear from. You are discharged from your labors."

The next Grand Jury will be selected on the first Monday in March.

THE LAW COURTS.

An Unhinged Gate—Divorce and Mother-in-Law—A Piano Case.

Judge Adams has taken under advisement the Stewart divorce case, which occupied the greater portion of yesterday. The evidence developed the familiar mother-in-law feature in cases where young couples fail to get along happily together. Mrs. Rosa E. Stewart figured as the plaintiff, and her husband, James Stewart, answered and appeared in court to resist the decree. There was a volume of testimony showing incompatibility of temper, but little else.

A demurrer has been filed in Court No. 3 in the case of Skrainka & Veith, contractors, against Adolphus Meyer. This is an action for the construction of granite paving on Main street in front of Meyer's property. The demurrer is designed to raise the law points involved in the granite paving controversy. The defendant is represented by Glover & Shepley and J. L. & F. P. Blair.

The jury in the eye-damage case of Pettigrew against the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $1,000. This is the third instance within a few days of a jury in Judge Barclay's court returning a verdict for ten per cent of the amount of damages claimed.

In Judge Adams' court today a jury was sworn for the trial of the damage case of Walter C. Cave by next friend against Michael Foley. In this suit Seneca Taylor appears for the plaintiff, a little boy, and A. R. Taylor represents the defendant. It appears that the boy was injured by the falling of a gate in an alley. He was chasing a chicken, and the gate, which was only supported by the lower hinge, fell upon him, crushing his leg and causing permanent injury. The gate led into a coal yard, and it is alleged that the accident could not have happened if the gate had been properly and securely hinged. The defense is contributory negligence.

The damage case of Emma Dugdale against Charles Wesley Handley, the pianoforte dealer, will go to trial in Judge Horner's court on Monday. This is a peculiar suit, alleging malicious prosecution. The plaintiff obtained a piano on the installment plan, and before the purchase was completed she changed her residence. It was only a case of removing a few blocks, but the piano-forte man became alarmed and took steps to get possession of the piano. He obtained a replevin writ and took a constable to remove the piano. The plaintiff, however, tendered the balance of the purchase-money, but she objected to pay some small sum for costs which she had not incurred, and the piano-forte man caused her to be arrested for removing the piano. In the Court of Criminal Correction the case was promptly dismissed, as there was no evidence to support the charge of intent to defraud. The lady now asks damages on account of the prosecution and groundless arrest.

Four Courts Notes.

Judge Van Wagener will take up his law docket in the Criminal Court to-morrow.

H. J. Powell was fined $10 on a charge of riotously disturbing the peace, by Judge Noonan to-day, but on a presentation of facts made by Mrs. Powell the fine was stayed on good behavior.

On account of the illness of Mr. C. O. Bishop, senior counsel for the defense in the case of John Peyton, charged with murder, the trial was to-day postponed in the Criminal Court until next Monday.

The Compton Hill Reservoir.

An excellent plan for purifying the water of the Compton Hill Reservoir has been suggested by a well-known scientist who has spent years in experiment and investigation, and has brought to perfection a certain method of filtering which has proven to be the only process by which St. Louis water can be made pure and clear. This process is practically illustrated in the Stevens Improved Filter that the Simmons Hardware Company sell and guarantee to be the best in use.

Reconsideration of the Immigration Bill Results in Its Passage--New Bills.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, February 16.—When the House met this morning, the mistake in the record on the immigration vote was corrected at Dawson's request. This left the bill open for action, and a motion to reconsider carried. The bill was then put upon its passage and received seventy-five votes to fifty against. Bradley and Vanzant deserted the opposition, and Johns, of Clinton, Crunne and Taylor, of Grundy, who were absent yesterday, voted for the bill. Ellerbee, of St. Louis county, appeared in his seat and voted no.

NEW BILLS.

There was another large batch of new bills.

A constitutional amendment, making women eligible as school officials, was of the number.

A memorial to Congress to urge a national department of agriculture was presented.

Mr. Brady offered a resolution fixing the date of adjournment on March 13, but failed to secure its consideration.

Mr. Brooks introduced a bill to-day, giving jurisdiction to Justices of the Peace in St. Louis in all civil suits except landlords' summons. A recent decision of the Court of Appeals declares that Justices of the Peace have jurisdiction in civil cases in their own or adjoining districts. This bill is to give them jurisdiction coextensive with the limits of the city.

The bill amending what is known as O'Neill's servant girl act, so as to include mechanic's claims for labor and material not to exceed $30, passed the House.

The Governor has signed the bill requiring fines and forfeitures to be paid directly into the State Treasury.

Prohibition in Iowa.

CHICAGO, February 16.—A Des Moines special says: The Attorney-general has been consulting with the Governor a day or two past, and, it is creditably reported, will soon prepare a petition to the Supreme Court for a rehearing of the prohibition amendment validity case at the Council Bluffs term March 20. One or two lawyers have tried to file a motion for a rehearing, but the clerk refused to docket their motion under the rules of the court.

The Dissensions in the St. Louis Delegation.

Immigration Bill Debate--A Lecture on Reformatory Institutions--News From the State Capital.

From our Special Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, February 15.—The St. Louis delegation troubles continue, and tonight they held a characteristic meeting. The details of the session would read much after the manner of the report of an uptown primary meeting during a heated political campaign. After having easily disposed of the bill enlarging the political influence of the Coroner's office of St. Louis, by agreeing to report it favorably, Mr. Brooks introduced a resolution requesting Chairman Kent to resign. There was a brief but animated debate, and then the vote was taken with the following result: Against the resolution, Hornsby, Jones, Brady, Wray, Curtiss and McGinness, six in all. For the resolution, Ryan, Carroll, Walton, Brooks and Bentley. Mr. Hall, who all along was claimed as an anti-Kent man, and who was in fact their candidate for chairman, left the room a few minutes before the vote was taken, and failed to return. Ed. Butler, who perhaps nominated Kent, through the assurance of Lieut.-Gov. Campbell that he would vote with "the boys," was more than indignant at the outcome, and the vials of his wrath were poured out upon Brady, who all along had been counted as with the insurrectionists. Kent had recently said that Butler or no other man could influence him, and the blacksmith remarked this evening after the battle was over, and in the presence of several members of the delegation, "He says Butler can't control him, but when I gave him the nomination when he couldn't get a vote from his own ward, he thought pretty well of Butler." The cause of the trouble is the opposition of the Kent party to the elective bill. Whether Mr. Kent will desire to continue as the head of a divided and faction-torn delegation is a matter within his knowledge only. That the discussions of the body furnish an edifying spectacle to the country members is as patent as that the state of affairs will be disastrous to all St. Louis measures, with the possible exception of the National Guard bill, which, by the way, has been favorably reported upon in the House and Senate.

IMMIGRATION DEFEAT.

The debate on the bill to repeal the immigration law today was, as anticipated, animated and very interesting. Capt. Farris, of Ray, opened the ball for his measure with an eloquent speech that commanded the closest attention. He at first set out, in well-rounded terms, the fact that he was not opposed to immigration. He invited it, and his votes would be found on the side of broad educational and practical measures, that induced it. Missouri has good farming lands, and is rich in natural resources. Good schools, good roads, wise laws were to his eyes the best "hand-book." Then he reviewed the workings of the McKinley Board, and insisted that its labors were barren of results. True, within the four years Missouri's population had greatly increased; but Missouri's richness was responsible for it, and not the McKinley board and its 15,000 hand-books stored over in Liverpool to-day. When he had concluded his speech Steven Reagan, of Jackson, followed in a characteristic opposition to the bill, filled with his usual homespun all-wool-and-a-yard-wide horse sense. He claimed direct results in his county from the immigration movement. "The passage of this bill," said he, among other things, "will give Missouri a stroke of paralysis that it will take ten years to recover from." Gideon, of Christian, said that the State could not afford to plaze on the world that she was opposed to immigration. Cockerill, of Howard, a bright young editor, delighted his friends by an able speech in which he held that the question of inducing immigration was one purely of business. Wingo, of Dent, said that the land of Missouri should be held for the people of Missouri, their children and their children's children. Langan, of Pettis, followed in a genuine "massback" speech for the bill, and Judge Landers, of Linn, closed by a strong arraignment of the present board. The roll was called amidst excitement, and the announcement made that the bill had received seventy-one votes, just exactly the required number. The bill was declared as carried and the usual clinching motions prevailed, when it was discovered that Dawson, of New Madrid, was incorrectly recorded for the bill. To-morrow there will be a lively time, when Dawson attempts to have the record corrected. That will defeat the bill. A measure almost identical is about to pass the Senate, and it will soon be in the House. At the conclusion of Farris' speech the bill had probably had about ninety votes. From his standpoint immigration could be favored, and the present board abolished in furtherance of the movement. When Wingo and Langan had concluded there were but seventy voters for it, and another such speech would have defeated the bill, as it put the body in the attitude of declaring that they were opposed to immigration. Walton, Ryan and Brooks, of St. Louis, voted for the bill. The latter will oppose all immigration bills, on the ground that Missouri has now on hand enough unemployed foreign laborers. Those who have money enough to buy farms will come without being paid to do so.

STATE REFORM SCHOOL.

Hon. Marvin H. Bovee, of Wisconsin, arrived in the city some ten days ago in response to an invitation of Gov. Crittenden, and delivered his first address on reformatory institutions last Thursday, Gov. Crittenden presiding. By invitation of the Governor and members of the Legislature Mr. Bovee delivered his second address this evening, the subject of his lecture being "The Better Plan; or, What Should be Done with the Criminal?" Mr. Bovee opened his address by declaring that it was the first and highest duty of society to protect itself. Second, that society was never so well protected as when its criminals were reformed; that all would agree to this proposition provided the criminal could be reformed. Third, that society had not the right to send any one of its criminals to any place to make him morally worse, or, having made him worse, had no right to restore him at all.

The speaker believed that the great body of mankind were honest, upright and virtuous, rejecting the idea that men were naturally depraved. In support of this position, he showed by statistics that not more than one of every thousand was sent to penal institutions, that the great problem to solve was how to bring the criminal into proper relations with society.

The speaker took the ground that reformation should be the underlying principle of all penal institutions; that our prisons should be called State reformatories, and their character made what the name would imply—that time-penalties, determinate sentences, should be abolished, and all violations of law should be sent to the State Reformatory and retained until they were morally improved, no matter what the crime or how long it took to secure reformation; the pardoning power to be placed in a board of supreme arbiters, who should live at or near the institution, thus enabling them to determine when the inmates might be safely restored to liberty. The speaker's most earnest appeal was for the children of our country; for those who in youth were nurtured in vice or who had incidentally fallen into crime. Mr. Bovee advocated at some length the necessity of a State Industrial School for the young criminal—an institution where those between the ages of ten and eighteen might be sent for education, trade and employment, whereby they might be made useful citizens. In those States which, for many years, had established these schools, it was found that there was a decrease in the number of the inmates of the penitentiaries; that while the young criminals were reformed the old ones died out. The speaker said that no civilized government should ever permit vengeance to enter into the composition of its laws; that while protecting society it must deal with the criminal firmly but kindly; that whatever was good in the criminal man must be encouraged and brought out that thereby he might be saved to his family and the State, if possible.

Mr. Bovee's two addresses have received the closest possible attention and have been much discussed by all who heard him.

The Committee on Benevolent and Scientific Institutions have reported a bill for a reform school for juvenile criminals, and there is every prospect of its becoming a law.

PROHIBITION AND LICENSE.

It seems to be the general impression that the discussion of the Prohibition resolution will be delayed until late in the session. A bitter discussion of several days' duration is sure to attend the discussion of the measure. To precipitate it at this time with legislation in such a backward state would be the height of folly, so members on either side of the question admit, and if Stapleton should, as he has indicated, he would within a few days offer a resolution calling upon the Committee on Constitutional Amendments to report at once, it would be defeated. The House bill on dramshops has not been perfected as yet, but the St. Louis bill as brought up here by Cupples et al., has been seriously amended. James O. Broadhead is here urging high license, and held a seance with the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence this afternoon.

NOTES.

Speaker Richardson left for home in ill health this evening, accompanied by Senator Yancey.

Insurance Commissioner John F. Williams is here to give his personal and official opinion of various pending measures affecting insurance.

It is said that the Cole county member agreed some time ago not to introduce any bill appropriating money to improve the Capitol, if the Sedalia member would not spring the capital removal matter this session.

The House has passed two Justices of the Peace bills, local to St. Louis, one giving the Justices of the Peace concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Criminal Correction; the other to give the power to fill vacancies to the Circuit Courts, instead of the Mayor.

Two Men Shot Dead.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

AVA, ILL., February 15.—A lamentable affair, resulting in the instant death of two young men, occurred three miles east of this place on Tuesday, February 13. As Mr. Dave Holiday, accompanied by Mr. Raleigh Wills, a respected farmer, were going to repair the school-house, they were met in the road by John Wallace, aged 23, and James Wallace, aged 19, who had previously threatened to kill Holiday. One of the Wallaces said, "Now is as good a time as any to settle this trouble," and both started toward Holiday with open knives, one of them trying to get behind him. Holiday succeeded in backing off to the fence. Not having time to scale the fence he opened fire with a Smith & Wesson improved revolver, shooting John Wallace through the heart, killing him instantly. Dave Wallace continued coming, dodging his head downward to escape the bullet, which passed under his eye and out at the back of his neck, breaking his neck. While he was sinking down a second shot went through his heart, resulting in instant death. Two other shots missed him entirely. Holiday, leaving his revolver at Mr. Wills, went immediately to Ava and delivered himself up to the Marshal, who telegraphed Sheriff M. A. Ross for a coroner and instructions. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide in self-defense and set Holiday free.

The Tortures of the Cold.

From the St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger.

Allen Stone, of Elmore, on Thursday night, Feb. 1., started to go across the pond after his day's work, but becoming bewildered by the storm and darkness lost his way. He wore felt boots, with rubbers; the latter were lost off by stepping into some water on the ice, and the boots were soon worn out by the icy crust. He then tore up his overcoat for covering his feet, using strips from his shirt-sleeves to tie with, but these could not be made to last long. He finally got to the shore, nearer dead than alive, and ready to give up the struggle; but seeing a house he crawled up to it and was admitted. He was coatless, and his feet were bare and frozen solid half way to his knees, and badly torn by the crust. His hands were also frozen. The best remedies were applied and a physician summoned, but Mr. Stone will have to suffer the amputation of both feet and a part of one hand. He is 30 years old, and has no family. The time he was wandering was from 6 p. m. to 2 a. m.

Old Time News-Gathering.

From an Interview with James Watson Webb.

There has been a great advance made in the collection of news since I took charge of the Courier and Enquirer in 1827. I compelled the Advertiser, Mercantile and Gazette, the other three newspapers, to put on extra boats for the collection of news from incoming vessels. When they built a pile-boat I put my own boat, the Eclipse, beside theirs and told the captain to go wherever it went, if to the bottom. I thus was sure of getting all the news they did. Then I launched my big steamer, the Courier and Enquirer, and cruised about the outer bay; my getting the news in advance compelled them to buy it of me. Then I spent $6,000 a month on a horse express to Washington. The news of Monday, that previously was not published in this city until Thursday, I printed on Wednesday. Then the telegraph and railroad came along and knocked my express all to pieces. I was for thirty-four years at the head of that newspaper.

A CLOSE-FISTED ECONOMIST.

The farmer sat in his easy chair
Between the fire and the lamplight's glare;
His face was ruddy and full and fair.
His three small boys in the cimney nook
Conned the lines of a picture book;
His wife, the pride of his home and heart,
Baked the biscuit and made the tart,
Laid the table and drew the tea,
Deftly, swiftly, silently;
Tired and weary, weak and faint,
She bore her trials without complaint,
Like many another household saint—
Content, all selfish bliss above
In the patient ministry of love.

At last, between the clouds of smoke
That wreathed his lips the farmer spoke:
"There's taxes to raise and interest to pay,
And if there should come rainy a day
'Twould be mighty handy, I'm bound to say,
T' have something put by. For folks must die,
An' there's funeral bills, and grave stones to buy—
Enough to swamp a man, purty nigh;
Besides, there's Edward and Dick an' Joe
To be provided for when we go;
So, if I were you, I'll tell you what I'd do:
I'd be savin' of wood as ever I could—
Extra fires don't do any good;
I'd be savin' of soap, and savin' of ile,
And run up some candles once in a while;
I'd rather be sparin' of coffee and tea,
For sugar is high,
An' all to buy,
And cider is good enough drink for me;
I'd be kind o' careful about my clo'es
And look sharp how the money goes—
Gewgaws is useless, natur' knows;
Extra trimmin'
'S the bane of women.
I'd sell the best of my cheese an' honey,
An' eggs is as good, nigh 'bout, as money,
An' as to the carpet you wanted new—
I guess we can make the old one do;
And as for the washer an' sewin' machine,
Them smooth-tongued agents, so pesky mean,
You'd better get rid of them slick and clean.
What do they know 'bout woman's work?
Do they calkilate women was made to shirk?"

Dick and Edward and little Joe
Sat in the corner in a row;
They saw their patient mother go
On ceaseless errands to and fro:
They saw that her form was bent and thin,
Her temples gray, her cheeks sunk in;
They saw the quiver of lip and chin—
And then, with a wrath he could not smother,
Outspoke the youngest, frailest brother:
"You talk of savin' wood an' ile
An' tea an' sugar all the while,
But you never talk of savin' mother!"

BENEDICT'S CHOICE.

"I never was in such a peck of trouble in my life," mused Benedict Bayberry to himself, abstractedly stroking his chestnut-brown whiskers and frowning in a manner quite foreign to his usual "happy-go-easy" disposition. I used to think if ever I fell in love I'd know my own mind; but I'll swan if I ain't plum beat this time, and no mistake. I'd rather dig a hull field of potatoes or cut medder six weeks in succession, than try to tell which of them two girls I like best. I've studied and studied for hours at a time whether I'd ask Selina Peabody or Delilah Dobbins, an' the more I study over it, the more befuddled I git. Them bein' step-sisters, too, makes it kind of worse, fur when I go to the house I'm sure to see 'em both, and I'm plagued if I can tell which one I'd rather have. Delilah's a little the peakedest; but then she's got such little, white hands, and such black eyes and her cheeks are as red as any double hollyhock I ever see. And then Selina, she's plump as a wood pigeon, and with hair like streaks of golden sunshine, and eyes as shy and blue as wild asters. Of course, folks'll talk if I marry either of 'em, being as they're poor and Miss Peabody takes in washing; but I reckon I'm able to please myself, and ain't got to say 'By your leave,' to nobody."

Mr. Bayberry was certainly able to please himself, if the best farm in the country, with a cozy dwelling-house and a snug "nest-egg" in the village bank, gave him the right.

"And I must marry soon," he continued, growing more perplexed than ever; "for Miss Cranebill has hinted pretty strong of late that I may have to look out for another housekeeper soon, as folks are beginning to talk. Strange they never began to talk before, when she's kept house for me three years now. I s'pose she has an eye to being mistress here from the way she talks."

On the same Saturday afternoon pretty Selina Peabody had been ironing since 7 o'clock in the morning. The heat in the close kitchen had crimsoned her cheeks and curled her hair in little rings about her forehead.

"I do wonder," she was thinking to herself, with a happy light in the shy, blue eyes; "I wonder if he will be at church to-morrow, and if he will walk home with us."

"As the acute reader doubtless guesses, the "he" in this instance meant Mr. Bayberry.

And——

"I hope it won't snow to-morrow," thought Miss Delilah Dobbins, as she doubled a pink satin ribbon into a bow and tried its effect on her complexion. "I hope it won't snow, for I want to go to church. Of course Mr. Bayberry will be there, and if I don't get a proposal from him this time it won't be my fault. I'm tired to death of working and drudging and being a nobody, and to-morrow I'll set my wits to work, and——"

"Delilah!"

"Dear me! there's ma calling; what do they want now?"

And Miss Delilah flounced down stairs with an impatient shrug of the shoulders and a frown between her black eyes.

"Well, what do you want?" she pouted sulkily.

Her stepmother looked up with a pale face from the basket of clothes over which she was stooping.

"I think you will have to carry Mrs. Simonson's clothes home, Delilah. Ned has to go to mill, and——"

"I won't do any such thing!" snapped the black-eyed beauty, crossly. "Carry home clothes, indeed, as if I was a servant girl! Why don't Selina go, if anybody must?"

"Selina has been ironing since early this morning, and is tired out," answered Mrs. Peabody mildly, not daring to venture a stronger remonstrance.

"Well, upon my word," sneered Delilah. "Selina's getting mighty fine of late, if a little work lays her out. Anyhow, I shan't grudge, if Mrs. Simonson goes without clothes all the days of her life. I'm busy fixing my dress to go to church to-morrow, so you needn't call me any more till supper is ready."

And she hastened back to finish the pink bow and put another ruffle on the skirt of her cashmere frock.

"What shall we do, Selina?" groaned Mrs. Peabody, despairingly. Mrs. Simonson's our best customer, and she's so pertikler about havin' her clothes early Saturday afternoon! and Delilah's so fractious——"

"Never mind Delilah, ma. I'll take the clothes home. I ain't so very tired—and you won't have so much to do for supper. I parched the coffee in the oven while I was ironing, and there's enough cold biscuit and apple-sauce."

And Selina hurriedly wrapped a scarlet and black plaid shawl about her plump shoulders, tied on her blue-worsted hood and started out with Mrs. Simonson's basket of clothes.

* * * * * *

"Je-rusalem! I've got it now!" and the frown disappeared from over Mr. Bayberry's nose, while his handsome face brightened perceptibly. "I see my way now, clear as daylight and I shan't have to marry Miss Cranebill, or go without a housekeeper, either, as she hinted I would! I'm a goin' to leave it all to chance—or Providence, rather—an' the first one of them girls I see by herself I'm a goin' to pop the question to right straight off! An' now, that question's settled an' off my mind, I'll go down an' see 'Squire Simonson about trading fur that gray mare of his'n."

And, donning his overcoat and hat, Mr. Bayberry strode down the frosty road to 'Squire Simonson's, and also to his fate; for as he turned into the lane, where the last scarlet and gold leaves had fluttered down from the tall maple by the road, he encountered a little figure in a red and black plaid shawl, with a blue worsted hood setting on the maize-gold hair and the pink-tinted cheek.

"Je-rusalem!" muttered Mr. Bayberry, exultantly; "if it ain't Selina! And somehow another I can't help feeling a little mite glad it is her instead of the black-eyed one; though I did think I couldn't choose between 'em."

The short wintry day was drawing to a close when Selina reached home.

"So you've come at last?" snapped Delilah, opening the door with a jerk, as she caught the sound of footsteps outside. Might as well have stayed all night, while you were about it! Why, Mr. Bayberry! is it really you? Do come in, won't you?" and the little white hand was held out, while the black eyes looked coquettishly into his.

"Well, I don't reckon I'll stop this time, Miss Delilah," returned her visitor, with a smile twinkling in his hazel-brown eyes. "I only just come to bring my wife home on a visit."

"Your—wife?"

The black eyes expressed the amazement her tongue failed to utter.

"My wife," repeated Mr. Bayberry, complacently. "I am your brother-in-law now, Miss Delilah. But Selina can tell you better'n I can how I met her a-goin' to 'Squire Simonson's, and popped the question on the spot; and then the 'Squire he mistrusted something and begun a-jokin' us, and the first thing I knew I was a-runnin' off on his gray mare to git a license—that's what kep us so late. An' the 'Squire he married us—so that's all. I'm a goin' to get the light wagon to take Selina home."

Delilah's wrath knew no bounds.

"Selina knew well enough he was a-going to Simonson's to-day, she stormed, while her mother and sister finished getting supper with light hearts and smiling faces; "she knew he was going to be there, and that's the reason she was so willing to take the clothes. I see through her sly maneuvers."

But Mr. Bayberry never regretted the happy solution of the dilemma.

THE FRECKLED-FACED GIRL.

How She Entertained a Visitor While Her Ma Was Dressing.

From the Boston Globe.

"Ma's up stairs changing her dress" said the freckle-faced little girl, tying her doll's bonnet-strings and casting her eye about for a tidy large enough to serve as a shawl for that double-jointed young person.

"Oh, your mother needn't dress up for me," replied the female agent of the missionary society, taking a self-satisfied view of herself in the mirror." Run up and tell her to come down just as she is in her every-day clothes, and not stand on ceremony."

"O, but she hasen't got on her every-day clothes. Ma was all dressed up in her new brown silk, 'cause she expected Miss Dimmond to-day. Miss Dimmond always comes over here to show off her nice things, and ma don't mean to get left. When ma saw you coming she said, 'The Dickens!' and I guess she was mad about something. Ma said if you saw her new dress she'd have to hear all about the poor heathen, who don't have silk, and you'd ask her for more money to buy hymn books to send 'em. Say, do the nigger ladies use hymn book leaves to do their hair up on and make it frizzy? Ma says she guesses that's all the good the books do 'em, if they ever get any books. I wish my doll was a heathen.'

"Why you wicked little girl, what do you want of a heathen doll?" inquired the missionary lady, taking a mental inventory of the new things in the parlor to get material for a homily on wordly extravagance.

"So folks would send her lots of nice things to wear and feel sorry to have her going about naked. Then she'd have hair to frizz, and I want a doll with truly hair and eyes that roll up like Deacon Sliderback's when he says amen on Sunday. I ain't a wicked girl, either, 'cause Uncle Dick—you know uncle Dick, he's been out West and swears awful and smokes in the house—he says I'm a holy terror and he hopes I'll be a angel pretty soon. Ma'll be down in a minute, so you needn't take your cloak off. She said she'd box my ears if I asked you to. Ma's putting on that old dress she had last year, 'cause she said she didn't want you to think she was able to give much this time, and she needed a new muff worse than the queen of the cannon ball islands needed religion. Uncle Dick says you oughter go to the islands, 'cause you'd be safe there, and the natifs'd be sorry they was such sinners anybody would send you to 'em. He says he never seen a heathen hungry enough to eat you, 'less 'twas a blind one, an' you'd set a blind pagan's teeth on edge so he'd never hanker after any more missionary. Uncle Dick's awful funny, and makes pa and ma die laughing sometimes."

"Your Uncle Richard is a bad, depraved wretch, and ought to have remained out West, where his style is appreciated. He sets a horrid example for little girls like you."

"Oh, I think he's nice. He showhd me how to slide down the bannisters, and he's teaching me to whistle when ma ain't round. That's a pretty cloak you've got, ain't it? Do you buy all your good clothes with missionary money? Ma says you do."

Just then the freckle-faced little girl's ma came into the parlor and kissed the missionary lady on the cheek and said she was delightful to see her, and they proceeded to have a real sociable chat. The little girl's ma can't understand why a person who professes to be so charitable as the missionary agent does should go right over to Miss Dimond's and say such ill-natured things as she did, and she thinks the missionary is a double-faced gossip.

THE INDIAN POET.

John Ridge, the Student, Writer and Avenger of His Father's Death.

From the Shasta Courier.

There are on the Comstock many men who were well acquainted with John. R. Ridge, who was a really remarkable man. He was a man who could sit upon a point of rocks in the high Sierras for hours gazing down upon the valleys, the huge pines and tumbling canyons, drinking in and enjoying the beauties of nature, so absorbed in thought as to hardly move hand or foot; yet arouse the Indian in him and he was a man of steel and without a thought of anything humane or poetical until his vengeance was satiated. It was two different souls within one body. His Indian name was "Yellow Bird."

John R. Ridge was the eldest son of Major Ridge, Chief of the Cherokee Nation, who was murdered in his house by a deputation of the rival Ross party, and John Ross in consequence became chief. The little John was concealed in the weeds, saw his father stabbed and shot to death and swore vengeance on the murderers. When he became a man he armed himself and went on a still hunt on the warpath and followed on the trail until he had slain thirty-two of them. At length the mysterious death of one of their number, in 1849, aroused the vengeance of the Ross men, who, suspecting the author of their calamities, pursued Ridge several hundred miles over the plains, but being well mounted and in company with the celebrated Charley MacIntosh he made his way in safety to California.

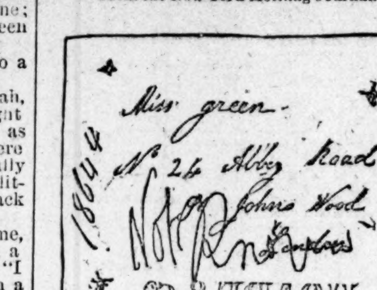

Some time in 1859 Mr. Ridge was editor of the Marysville Democrat, and one night received a dispatch from Weaverville, stating that a party of Cherokee Indians from Cherokee Bar were on a spree in town, and one of them was boasting that he had had a hand in the derth of Major Ridge and had stabbed him fiv times. That same hour the avenger was on his trail. Without mentioning his purpose to any one in the printing office, Ridge hired a horse at the livery stable and started for Weaverville, over two hundred miles, but somehow the enemy got telegraphic intelligence of his coming, and on his arrival not a Cherokee could be found on Trinity River. Mr. Ridge died a few years ago in Grass Valley, universally lamented and leaving to the world the most glorious poem ever written in California—that on "Mount Shasta."

A LONDON SENSATION.

A Young Girl's Body Found in a Starch Box.

From the New York Morning Journal.

Considerable excitement and horror have lately been caused in London, England, by the discovery of the remains of a young girl doubled up in a starch box. The details somewhat resemble and recall to mind the celebrated case that occurred in this city some years ago, when the notorious and infamous Dr. Rosenzweig was convicted of sending the remains of one of his victims away from his residence by express doubled up in a trunk. The facts of the case are as follows:

It appears that on the 11th of December last two men left a box at the shop of Davies & Evans, oil and color men, 156 Cambridge road, agents for Carter, Patterson & Co., carriers, addressed to "Miss Green, 24 Abbey road, St. John's Wood." These men were dressed like ordinary tradesmen. One of them deposited the box inside the shop and gave the name of the sender, when asked, as "Smith." The box was "booked" in the ordinary way, but no charge for its carriage was paid. The label on which the address was written, a fac-simile of which is given above, had formed originally part of the cover of an address-book of Messrs. Hoare & Co., brewers. Such books they are in the habit of issuing to their customers to jot down their daily takings. The gilt letters on the one side of this, being in a good state of preservation, point, it is thought, to the fact that it must have been issued at a comparatively recent date, but on this point nothing definite can beascertained, as the firm mentioned are in the habit of issuing thousands of such books in the course of a year. The box itself was a starch box that bore the brand of the manufacturers, Messrs. Berger & Co., of Bromley-by-Bow, on one end, together with the number 11,911. It was eighteen inches long, ten inches wide and twelve and a half inches deep, and had a wrapper around it and was tied with rope. It was taken by the carriers in their usual way to their head office in Goswell road and from there sent to the address given, but no such person as Miss Green could be found. It was taken back to the Carter, Patterson & Co. office and further inquiries were instituted to find out either the party who sent the box or the one to whom it was addressed, but without success. After a day or two it was noticed that an offensive odor pervaded the office and on investigation it was found to come from this particular box, whereupon it was removed to the station house, where it was again opened. The body was found forced into the box, doubled upon itself twice and formed a compressed letter S. It was that of a female, short of stature, being only four feet in length, much emaciated and weighing but twenty-four pounds. The complexion was fair, the hair light brown, eyes hazel brown, a very good set of teeth, very large and regular. One tooth had been removed on either side of both the upper and lower law, evidently by a professional man, to make room, the jaws being overcrowded. She had all her teeth but one of the wisdom teeth. The ears are not pierced. The body had a chemise on. The lungs were found healthy, the heart and liver naturrl. The blood was poor and watery. There was no trace of fat about the body. No sufficient cause of death was found, but, although there is nothing pointing to the cause of death, it might have been brought about by poisoning by a very slow process.

The police offer a reward of £5 to the man who carried the box to the Cambridge road office if he will come forward. It is believed by the police that he was a porter innocently hired for the occasion.

The number 11,911 on the box was thought to be an important clew to the mystery, but on reference to Messrs. Berner, it appears that they number all their cases, commencing each year at No. 1, and so on in consecutive numbers. Therefore it would be difficult to tell whether the box in question was sent out in 1881 or 1882. The theory is that it was not purchased as an "empty," as no oilman or grocer would open it by taking out an end, and it is therefore supposed that the box was bought by a consumer full of starch, opened by him or her in the way described, and came ready to hand when a box of some kind was needed to contain the body.

The police have circulated an information minutely describing the teeth, which are chiefly relied upon as a means of identification. A cast of the mouth is also to be taken. The age of the girl is uncertain, but from the appearance of the mouth, which Dr. Yarrow describes as "characteristic," and from the presence of the wisdom teeth, it is thought that the girl was at least sixteen years of age. The rest of the body, from the thinness of the skull, state of the bones and other conditions, points to an age of nine, or not exceeding twelve years. The hair is of a particularly fine and silky description, and appears to have been well cared for. This is looked upon as another possible means of identification.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral is acknowledged the best of all preparations for the cure or pulmonary complaints.

He Understood It.

From the Detroit Free Press.

A woman who got aboard the Eastern bound train on the Detroit, Lansing and Northern, at Howell, the other day, was accompanied by a big dog, and after the train had moved out a passenger walked back to the stove and asked of three or four young men sittting around there:

"Can any of you talk to a deaf and dumb person by signs?"

"I can, though I'm out of practice," replied one.

"Very well. I wish you'd go and ask that woman over there if she expects friends to meet her in Detroit."

The young man walked up to her, tapped her on the shoulder to attract attention, and began a series of gyrations with his fingers which attracted the eyes of every passenger in the car. The woman's eyes opened and her jaw fell with astonishment, but after a minute or two she colored up as red as a beet and called out:

"Yes, I've got my dog under the seat, and if you mean that you'll tell the conductor on me I mean that I'll hire some one to pitch you into a snow-drift if I have to mortgage my farm!"

The deaf and dumb language chopped off right there.

THE bone of contention among the medical fraternity can no longer be considered St. Jacob's Oil, since druggists whose veracity is not to be doubted, and eminent physicians like A. A. Waite, of Pittsfield, Mass., give and corroborate their testimony cheerfully and without solicitation. This speaks volumes.—Providence (R. I.) Democrat.

A Bank of England Story.

London Cor. Boston Journal.

I have heard that a note for £10,000 once had a singular history. It was paid out to one of the directors of the bank, who soon after lost it under such circumstances that he was satisfied, and succeeded in satisfying the bank, that it had fallen into his fireplace and been destroyed. He was given a new note, for which he returned a proper receipt and guarantee. Many years after the original note was presented for payment; the bank endeavored to disown it, but could not, for it was genuine and in the hands of an innocent person, and the bank had to pay it. Its history was then looked into, and it was ascertained that, instead of being burned, it had been carried up the chimney by a draught, and had found a safe lodgment in some cranny in the flue. Here it had remained until alterations in the house necessitated the removal of the chimney; then it was discovered by a workman, who regarded it as a legitimate find, and who presented it for payment. Right here I may as well relate another story of the bank, of which there are many, both in print and as legends, but of which I will let these two serve as specimens. A sewer workman, while poking around under ground, found that by raising a flagstone he could penetrate into the bullion room of the bank. Amazed at the discovery, he pondered over it, and finally concluded that he would utilize it to his pecuniary benefit without stealing. He therefore wrote to the directors, asking what reward he would receive if he should meet them at any appointed hour of the night in the bullion room, and thus reveal to them a mode of ingress of which they were entirely ignorant. They named a sum which would make him independent for life, and to their overwhelming surprise he kept his promise by popping up through the sewer, for which he received ten thousand pounds or so. This is supposed to have happened long ago.

HIS PA GETS MAD.

The Bad Boy Tells How Court Plaster Came to be Needed.

From Peck's Sun.

"I was down to the drug-store this morning, and saw your ma buying a lot of court plaster, enough to make a shirt, I should think. What's she doing with so much court plaster?" asked the groceryman of the bad boy, as he came in and pulled off his boots by the stove, and emptied out a lot of snow that had collected as he walked through a drift, on the hearth, which melted and made a bad smell.

"Oh, I guess she is going to patch pa up so he will hold water. Pa's temper got him into the worst muss you ever see, last night. If that museum was here now they would hire pa and exhibit him as the tattooed man. I tell you I have got too old to be mauled as though I was a kid, and any man who attacks me from this out wants to have his peace made with the insurance companies, and know that his calling and election is sure, because I am a bad man, and don't you forget it." And the boy pulled on his boots and looked so cross and desperate that the grocery man asked him if he wouldn't try a little new cider.

"Good heavens!" said the grocery man, as the boy swallowed the cider and his face resumed its natural look, and the piratical frown disappeared with the cider. "You have not stabbed your father, have you? I have feared that one thing would bring on another with you, and that you would yet be hung."

"Naw, I haven't stabbed him. It was another cat that stabbed him. You see, pa wants me to do all the work around the house. The other day he bought a load of kindling wood, and told me to carry it into the basement. I have not been educated up to kindling wood, and I didn't do it. When supper time came and pa found that I had not carried in the kindling wood, he had a hot box, and he told me if that wood was not in when he came back from the lodge that he would warm my jacket. Well, I tried to hire some one to carry it in, and got a man to promise to come in the morning and carry it in and take his pay in groceries, and I was going to buy the groceries here and have them charged to pa. But that wouldn't help me out that night. I knew when pa came home he would search for me. So I slept in the back hall on a cot. But I didn't went pa to have all his trouble for nothing, so I borrowed an old tomcat that my chum's old maid aunt owns, and put the cat in my bed. I thought if pa came into my room after me and found that by his unkindness that I had changed to a tomcat he would be sorry. That is the biggest cat you ever see and the worst fighter in our ward. It isn't afraid of anything and can whip a Newfoundland dog quicker than you could put sand in a barrel of sugar. Well, about 11 o'clock I heard pa tumble over the kindling wood, and I knew by the remark he made as the wood slid around under him that there was going to be a cat fight real quick. He come up to ma's room and sounded ma as to whether Hennery had retired to his virtuous couch. Pa is awful sarcastic when he tries to be. I could hear him take off his clothes and hear him say, as he picked up a trunk strap, 'I guess I will go up to his room and watch the smile on his face, as he dreams of angels. I yearn to press him to my aching bosom.' I thought to myself, mebbe you won't yearn so much directly. He come upstairs, and I could hear him breathing hard. I looked out around the corner, and could see he just had on his shirt and pants, and his suspenders were hanging down, and his bald head shone like a calcium light just before it explodes. Pa went in my room and up to the bed, and I could hear him say: 'Come out here and bring in that kindling wood, or I will start a fire on your base burner with this strap.' And then there was a howling such as I never heard before, and pa said 'Helen Blazes,' and the furniture in my room began to fall around and break. O, my, I think pa took the tomcat right by the neck, the way he does me, and that left all the cat's feet free to get in their work. By the way the cat squawled, as though it was being choked, I know pa had him by the neck. I suppose the cat thought pa was a whole flock of New Foundland dogs, and the cat had a record on dogs, and it kicked awful. Pa's shirt was no protection at all in a cat fight, and the cat just walked all around pa's stomach, and pa yelled 'Police,' and 'Fire,' and 'Turn on the hose,' and he called ma, and the cat yowled. If pa had had presence of mind enough to drop the cat, or rolled it up in the mattress, it would have been all right; but a man always gets rattled in time of danger, and he held onto the cat and started down stairs yelling murder, and he met ma coming up. I guess ma's nightcap, or something, frightened the cat some more, 'cause he stabbed ma on the nightshirt with one hind foot, and ma said 'Mercy on us,' and she went back, and pa stumbled on a handsled that was on the stairs and they all fell down, and the cat got away and went down in the coal bin and yowled all night. Pa and ma went into their room, and I guess they anointed themselves with vaseline and Pond's Extract, and I went and got into my bed, 'cause it was cold out in the hall, and the cat had warmed my bed as well as it had warmed pa. It was all I could do to go to sleep, with pa and ma talking all night, and this morning I came down the back stairs and haven't been to breakfast, cause I don't want to see pa when he is vexed. You let the man that carries in the kindling-wood have six shillings worth of groceries and charge them to pa. I have passed the kindling-wood period in a boy's life and have arrived at the coal period; I will carry in coal, but I draw the line at kindling-wood."

"Well, you are a cruel, bad boy," said the groceryman, as he went to the book and charged the six shillings.

"Oh, I don't know, I think pa is cruel. A man who will take a poor kitty by the neck, that hasn' done any harm, and tries to chastise the poor thing with a trunk strap, ought to be looked a ter by the humane society. And if it is cruel to take a cat by the neck, how much more cruel is it to take a boy by the neck, that had diphtheria only a few years ago, and whose throat is tender. Say, I guess I will accept of your invitation to take breakfast with you," and the boy cut off a piece of bologna and helped himself to crackers, and while the grocery-man was out shoveling off the snow from the sidewalk, the boy filed his pockets with raisins and loaf sugar and then went out to watch the man carry in his kindling wood.

"A DARTER UV MY OWN."

An Honest Ferryman's Service to a Foolish Girl.

From the Eour.

Sam Kimper was a ferryman on a Western river, who, although addicted to drinking, was a good, straightforward fellow, always courteous and correct in his dealings. One night as he was "poling" a man and a woman in a buggy across the river he heard her say: "What will my father think?" Further talk ensued, during which he recognized the voice of a doctor's daughter living a few miles down stream. He did not like the man's voice, and was confirmed in his prejudice when the fellow began talking about going to Cincinnati and not letting her father know of their movements for a week. The girl began crying and the fellow answered roughly. She begged him to take her back home. "Take you back home," said he in a rough laugh. "Let a bird out of a cage after you have fairly caught it? Oh, no! I love you too well for that." By this time the boat was nearly across the river, and Sam said to the stranger: "Mister, the curren's pooty swift to-day; there's a right smart freshet on. Reckon I'll have to ask you to make the lines fast ashore while I hold the boat agin the bank." The man got out and stood at the bow of the boat. Sam poled it against the bank with such violence that over went the man onto the shore. Sam let the boat drift away, and turning to the girl, amidst the howls and curses of the man in the water, said: "Reckon ye don't want him no more, do ye?" "No, no!" she exclaimed. The girl being in doubt about her ability to drive home, even after she had reached the other shore, Sam let his boat go down the stream. "What are you going to do?" asked the girl. "Boat ye down to the steamboat landin' for your town." "That will be a dreadful lot of work all for a silly girl." "Ive got a darter uv my own," said he. Pretty soon he stopped poling, and the girl said he must be very tired. "Not a bit of it," said Sam. "I'm slowin' up so's to reach there about dusk." "Just what I wanted to ask you to do." "Thought so," said Sam. "I've got a darter uv my own." Everything was favorable, and no one saw the carriage drive off the boat. The girl promised that her father would pay Sam handsomely. "I don't want the money," said Sam. "I've got a darter uv my own. There's one thing I do want," said Sam: "If doctors don't know good stuff from bad, nobody does, an' ef he could send me a good solid drink o' somethin,' seein' 'twill take me two or three hours to pole the boat back." The promise was readily given, and in a few minutes down came the Doctor with a bottle of brandy and two men to pole the boat back; but Sam said the brandy would be more useful as well as better company. The Doctor wanted to know how he could repay him, and Sam answered: "You can repay me in kind, ev ye ever get a chance. I've got a darter uv my own, ye know."

What Wicked Men Want.

From the Jersey City Journal.

"Oh, yes," said madame, after the usual domestic racket had got itself well under way; "oh, yes, you gentlemen want your wives to be angels!" "Not at all," replied Mr. Dusenberry, wiping the dishwater from his head and face, "not at all; we don't want them to be angels at all; we want them to be ladies." And then the row began all over again, and the cat crawled softly into the cellar to drop anchor until the storm should be over.

Bed-Ridden and Cured.

W. E. HUESTIS, of Emporia, Kansas, says that his wife had been sick nearly seven years, and for the last four months bed-ridden. She had been treated by a number of physicians and only grew worse. Her attention was called to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription," which she commenced using. In one week she could sit up, and in three weeks could walk about. ELDER MOSE KITE.

His Hair-Breadth Escapes From Seen and Unseen Forces.

From the Troy Kansas Chief, Jan. 18, 1883.

Most of our older citizens well remember Mose Kite, who lived in Petersburg Bottom. The hero of our State's early political history, who was of stalwart build and powerful physique; who in 1858 led a colony of our people to Pike's Peak; who fought the Indians on the plains and was shot through the body; who on his return here, after the rebellion, was converted and baptized by Elder Henshall, of the Christian Church at Petersburg Bottom, and became a revival preacher of celebrity all through this section. They will also recall the fact that, attacked with consumption and reduced to a skeleton, he was obliged to remove to the Rockies in the hope of saving his life None thought he would succeed. Last fall, however, the editor of this paper met him at the head of the Republican River, bigger and more robust than ever. "Why, I thought you had died of consumption long, long ago, Elder."

"Me? I never had consumption, man! though people thought that was what ailed me, and I thought so myself. But the doctors had sent me on a wild goose chase after a dozen other diseases just as fatal, and this was the wildest one of them all."

The good Elder then recounted to us, in a charming vein, his many adventures in the rough and ready life he had led. "But," he said, "remarkable as you may think my warlike life has been, I have a much more interesting story to tell you."

"You know what a rough, noisy fellow I used to be; and I could stand any hardship. Why, on a wager, I have knocked down an ox and a mule with my fist. I have fought ruffians, border outlaws and Indians; but I was

by a more dangerous unseen enemy that was ever getting me more completely in his clutches. I was shot by an Indian in a fight on the plains, but that wound healed readily and gave me but little trouble. After I returned to Kansas and commenced preaching, I first began to give way. I had a dull feeling, accompanied with a pain in the right side. Dr. Butler, our family physician, said my liver was out of order, caused by the malaria of the bottoms. I had always had an appetite like an ostrich, but my digestion became seriously impaired. While on the circuit preaching I consulted a doctor, who said I had dyspepsia. After that distressing palpitation of the heart followed, and the physician said this was caused by my indigestion and diseased liver, which would probably terminate fatally. Sometimes I had a ravenous appetite, at others none at all. I was feverish and then chilly. My food seemed to do me no good. A specialist told me I had a tape worm! Then I was troubled with unusual quantities of water and a frequent desire to urinate, which was done with difficulty and great pain. The specialist said I had a touch of the gravel, caused by use of the alkaline water of the plains. I then began to suffer severe pains in the loins and the small of the back, accompanied with sudden attacks of dizziness, during which I had to sit or lie down to avoid falling. I was forced to abandon because I could no longer ride on horseback, or trust myself out alone. I began to be seriously alarmed, and sought the advice of the most noted physician within reach. He said that my frequent horseback riding had jolted and jarred me until the old Indian wound, which had injured my kidneys, had become inflamed. He treated me with medicines and electricity also, but gave me no permanent benefit. My painful symptoms all returned. I began to cough, got very thin and my legs were disagreeably numb. I began to despair. At each attempt to cure, my ailments became worse, with new symptoms. I next consulted a noted physician from the East, who, after thumping and examining me, stated that I was in an advanced stage of consumption and threatened with diabetes and paralysis! He thought I might possibly prolong my life for a year or two, by seeking a higher and drier climate. This was my condition when the people in your part of the country last saw me.

TRAVELING AND PREACHING,

"Then I started for the Rockies, but liked this country, and settled here. At first the change helped me, but about three years ago the benefit ceased. Then I failed so rapidly that I could be out of bed only part of each day. All my old symptoms returned. At this crisis, a party of Eastern gentlemen, made my house their headquarters. In the party was a Dr. Wakefield, who informed me that I had a bad case of incurable Bright's Disease, and gave me a preparation which might, he said, ease me for a few weeks or months, but that was the best that could be done. Around the bottle was a newspaper. Now a newspaper is a rarity in our home, and I sat in my chair looking it over when my eye providentially fell upon an article relating a most wonderful cure of Bright's Disease—the very malady that was killing me—by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure (of Rochester, N. Y.) Convinced that further delay would be fatal, and everything else failing, the next morning I dispatched one of my boys to the nearest railroad station, many miles distant, to obtain a bottle of the Safe Cure. The druggist said the demand for the Cure was so great he could not keep it in stock, and he had to send to Kansas City for more. It was more than a week before it arrived, and I was daily getting weaker. But it came at last, and I at once began to take it. When I told Dr. Wakefield what I was taking, he gave me a look, half of scorn, half of pity, as much as to say, he is putting his trust in a humbug.' Nevertheless I persevered, and for the past year and a half I have been as stout and rugged as I ever was in my life. After escaping the attacks of Indians and half a dozen doctors, I was lying at the mercy of a still more dreadful foe that was about giving me the finishing blow, when that great remedy stepped in, slew my adversary, and placed me firmly on my feet once more. I have commenced preaching again; for I look upon the circumstances and manner of my cure as a direct interposition of Providence, and to Providence are my services due. That is my story. I think it is as good as a romance—and much better, for it is true."

ON A BUFFALO HUNT,

'POOR FELLOW!

Such is the substance and very nearly the language of Elder Kite's narrative. Those who read it, and are suffering, may benefit by his experience, if they will follow his example.

'CHANGE NOTES.

The East St. Louis Committee to Visit Springfield—Items on the Crop, Etc.

One week from yesterday will be Washington's birthday, and, as it is a legal holiday under the laws of this State, the Merchants' and the Cotton Exchanges and all banks will be closed to business.

John T. Milliken has returned from a visit to the flooded district along the Ohio River. He says that between Mount Vernon and Paducah there is fully half a million bushels of corn in pens and sacked on the river bank, all of which will be washed away and lost.

Outside of the sections of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Southern Illinois which are flooded and the crops drowned out, no reports of damage to wheat are heard of, but if a hard freeze follows this thaw evil consequences are expected. A late letter from A. W. Evans, from Howard county, Mo., states: "Heavy rains last night and warm today, causing the snow to disappear rapidly and leaving wheat unprotected. Of course, if spring sets in without any hard freeze, wheat will do well; but the late sown is reported as already in bad condition, and, should a blizzard follow this thaw, look out for a boom."

At the meeting yesterday of the East St. Louis Produce Exchange R. S. McCormick moved that the president, D. P. Grier, be authorized to appoint a committee of twelve, he to be chairman of said committee, to appear before the Illinois Legislature at Springfield, Ill., on Tuesday next, to represent the interests of East St. Louis in the matter of State inspection and registration at St. East Louis. The motion carried unanimously. Gen. Grier appointed the following gentlemen as this committee: D. P. Grier, J. C. Ewald, E. O. Stanard, Web. M. Samuel, Nathan Cole, J. S. Nanson, R. S. McCormick, John Whittaker, J. B. M. Kehlor, D. R. Francis, Redmond Cleary, S. W. Cobb and E. A. Babcock. This committee will leave next Monday night for Springfield. In order to obtain a joint meeting of the Senate and House committees, before whom this subject should be discussed. Gen. Grier to-day telegraphed Senator W. E. Mason, chairman of the Senate committee, asking if his committee would be prepared to receive and hear the East St. Louis delegation on Tuesday. A reply in the affirmative was received.

A petition, signed by the regular receivers and shippers over the railroads centering in East St. Louis, and addressed to these roads, was lately received by the Merchants' Exchange Transportation Committee and referred by the chairman to S. Frink, manager of the Freight Bureau. These petitioners remonstrate against an extra charge of $1 a car, as assessed since January 1, 1883, to switch a car of freight from these respective roads to the East St. Louis connecting railway, when the receiver or shipper wishes to remove the same to warehouse. The charge prior to January 1 was $1 per car and now it is $2. In answer to this Mr. Frink sends the following communication:

JOHN N. BOOTH, Chairman Transportation Committee, Merchants' Exchange.

DEAR SIR—This case is, as stated by the railroad men: If they knew before cars arrive they can much better make the delivery free than for $2 per car after the cars have come in and been switched in yards. The C., R. & Q. do not make the extra $1 charge. It looks to me as though you could readily avoid the extra dollar and do it as much to your own advantage as to that of the roads. Dispatch in handling cars at termial stations is of vital importance to the roads. This fact has always been overlooked by our people, and should be considered by them. Respectfully, S. FRINK, Manager.

THE PENITENTIARY.

Ex-Warden Dougherty Makes a Few Remarks on the Investigation.

The legislative committee appointed to investigate Penitentiary affairs arrived in St. Louis from Jefferson City last night. The committee consists of Senators McGrath, Mrrison, Downing, Edwards and Britts and Representatives Wallace and Krauthoff. Senator Edwards did not come down with the party but is expected to reach the city to-day.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning encountered Mr. W. Dougherty, a former Warden of the Missouri Peuitentiary and asked him his opinion concerning the probable result of the present investigation.

"Well," said Mr. Dougherty, "I do not think these gentlemen are very well qualified for the work they have taken in hand. Very few of them have sufficient prison knowledge to carry on an investigation. Many wrongs may be so easily overlooked and many charges traced to nothing. I remember that the late Mr. Pillsbury, who had been Warden of the Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary for fifty-four years, said on a similar occasion that he did not know how he ran the prison, even with his great experience. Now if this man, who had served a lifetime in the management of a penal institution, knew so little how is it to be expected that a few men who have absolutely no personal experience in such matters will arrive at any practical results?"

"Then you think the investigation ought to be abandoned?" queried the reporter.

"By no means," hastily responded Mr. Dougherty, "let the investigation proceed. I hope to see thorough work."

"What do you think of the laws pertaining to the Missouri Penitentiary?"

"Oh, it is well-know that the penal laws of Missouri are worse than those of any other State in the Union. No warden or manager can properly manage a prison with our laws. The Penitentiary has been from the beginning a target for any cross-road politician to fire at when he wants to achieve a little personal aggrandizement. The laws should be remodeled after those of Illinois or Ohio. The Penitentiary should be removed from politics altogether. I know whereof I speak when I say that there never was and never will be an investigation of the Penitentiary that is not prompted by political intrigue, spite or envy of outsiders with no honest purpose. An instance in point is the Woodson investigation ten years ago."

"Tell me something about it."

"Well, Woodson's cohorts went to work and got a law passed authorizing them to lease out the prison, on the plea that if this were done the State would receive a certain income. Under the system thus inaugurated contracts for prison labor then existing were annulled and contractors were ordered to suspend operations. The ousted contractors at once sought redress from the Legislature and sent in damage bills to the amount of many thousand dollars. The Legislature awarded large sums. I think the people of this State would like to know all about that famous lease and just how much the State has lost by the Woodson 'seance.'"

"Perhaps the present committee may take up this very matter?" suggested the reporter.

"That's just what I want to find out. Instead of reviewing the management of the prison for two years why do they not run back for ten years past and ferret out the $300,000 leasing swindle. Why can't they, starting from that time, come down year by year and show how much has been paid to officers, employes, etc., up to this year? If they do this the people will find what an expensive institution the Penitentiary is. They will find the penitentiary, instead of being self-sustaining, is behind every year from forty to fifty thousand dollars, and that the total deficiency for the past ten years is not less than $500,000. I defy any one to show figures to refute my statement that the Penitentiary is not a self-sustaining institution."

"What plan do you suggest to remedy the evils of which you comp ain?"

"Let the Penitentiary be removed from the influence of politics," promptly replied Mr. Dougherty. "Let the appointing power be taken from the Governor and vested in the hands of Prison Commissioners, true and tried men, surrounded by proper laws."

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Alleged Murder Near Brooklyn—News From Across the Bridge.

John Logan, a well known detective from Central Illinois, has been in East St. Louis for the last ten days, but moved too cautiously to betray his business till last evening, when he found that the object of his visit had departed from East St. Louis. Some time since the little town of Pana, Ill., in Edgar county, was startled by a series of bold and successful robberies. Logan was engaged to work up the case and secured sufficient evidence to justify the arrest of a suspicious character named Jacob Jones and a woman, whose name could not be ascertained. Jones and his fair accomplice, however, disappeared before their arrest could be effected, and concealed their whereabouts util about two weeks ago, when Logan located them in East St. Louis. A letter awaited Jones in the Post-office, and Logan, dressed in the garb of a tramp, stationed himself at the Post-office door, patiently awaiting the owner of the letter. Jones secured the letter and became aware of the officer's presence while the officer was at lunch, and immediately left East St. Louis. Lyon left for home this morning, but is still confident of bringing the burglar to justice.

A switch engine on the Louisville and Nashville tracks was derailed on Missouri avenue last evening but caused little damage.

The School Board expect to hold a regular meeting at the Middle School this afternoon.

Shortly before midnight a colored man rushed into the police station and informed the officer in charge that a cold-blooded murder had just been committed near the colored village of Brooklyn. His disconnected story was to the effect that he was walking along the Chicago and Alton tracks from Brooklyn to East St. Louis and had arrived about half a mile from Brooklyn when he saw four men a short way in front of him. One was a few feet in advance of the other three and a moment after seeing them the three in the rear assaulted the man in front. The man fought desperately but one of his antagonists used some instrument resembling a hatchet or a club, and made short work of the scuffle. The negro escaped and ran to East St. Louis. A detachment of police was sent immediately to Brooklyn, but the negro did not accompany them and cannot now be found. The police found a large pool of blood at the place described by the unknown negro and every evidence of a desperate struggle but no victim. A closer investigation led to the discovery of a large bloody trail in the mud leading to the river bank and two railroad ties covered with blood protruding into the river. The search for some clue to the mystery was continued all night, but no one in Brooklyn could furnish any information. The police are still working on the case, but up to noon they had discovered no clue. The only theory formed by the East St. Louis officers is that a solitary traveler was assaulted by foot-pads, resisted, and was murdered, his body being thrown into the river.

A Successful Entertainment.

Last evening Nonpareil Lodge No. 592 of the Knights and Ladies of Honor gave their first entertainment at Grand and St. Louis avenues. The audience room was crowded with prominent ladies and gentlemen, who received an excellent musical and literary treat through the efforts of committee of arrangements, consisting of Mr. Charles F. Beardsley, Mrs. Emma Lawler and Mrs. C. Berdan. Mr. J. M. Jordan gave a reading which was received with unstinted applause. Messrs. Wood and Neil and Messrs. Searing and Driscoll, rendered very pleasing music on the piano and violin. Piano solos by Miss Hartog, Miss Sallie McIntyre and Emma Boland were excellently played and made up a pleasing musical programme. Miss Marceau recited "Jennie McNeil's Ride" with a grace and force that evidenced much elocutionary power, and won great applause from a well pleased audience. Miss Lynch delivered a recitation in good style and was recalled. Miss Dowdell gave a couple of Dutch readings, which were gems indeed, and to crown the programme, Prof. Bender both delighted and mystified the audience with his pleasing exhibition of parlor magic, most fitly entitled "Fifteen Minutes in Wonderland." Each of the ladies contributing to the exercises was presented with a basket of beautiful cut flowers, through the courtesy of Mr. Albert Berdan, the florist, who is the treasurer of Nonpareil. This is the first entertainment that has been given by Nonpareil Lodge, which is only two months old, and promises much for them in the future.

"Says I to Myself, Says I."

The St. Louis streets are filled with mud,
Says I to myself, says I,
And it rolls along in an angry flood,
Says I to myself, says I.

Filling the town with slush and mire,
Till even the street-car mules expire,
And to leave this place is my only desire,
Says I to myself, says I.

Danger signals on every side,
Says I to myself, says I,
"No bottom here!" "Look out for the tide!"
Says I to myself, says I.

A pontoon bridge or a ferryboat
Must the citizen take in order to float,
For the slush is as deep as a castle's moat,
Says I to myself, says I.

The water you drink is as thick as ink,
Says I to myself, says I,
It comes from Compton Hill, I think,
Says I to myself, says I.

I'll leave this town on the very first train,
And I'll never come back to St. Louis again,
In the town of Chicago I'll surely remain,
Says I to myself, says I.

But there's one good thing they're about to do,
Says I to myself, says I,
It's a grand Exposition they have in view,
Says I to myself, says I.

So if they'll all with the cash come down,
There is still some hope for this ancient town,
I guess I'll continue and linger around,
Says I to myself, says I.
